Android 16 Bluetooth no longer able to deselect phone or media?

Before reviving this post, I did learn the how and why of Archived posts and agree, archiving is generally desirable.

Obviously reddit is not going to hook into Android Issue Tracker to see that this problem is very much still relevant and an open issue.

original reddit thread :

https://www.reddit.com/r/GooglePixel/comments/1ldp0ne/android_16_bluetooth_no_longer_able_to_deselect/

Status on issuetracker seems to be: nobody really wants to do anything about it, but it was re-opened on December 5th after my comment #37 voicing suspicion this bug is related to Android-Auto wanting to enforce use of vehicle speakerphone over any other suitable hands-free devices.

But in the two months since issue was re-opened, there appears to be little progress.

So long as this is still an Android Bug affecting nearly every Android phone user, my view is the thread should remain open.

Seriously, this isn't freaking Google Support. You want to report something or complain, go to them or make another issue tracker report.

Google has been dragging their feet, even closed the issue as "won't fix" at one point. If not for exposure here, it would likely never be fixed.

Except you think you are "reviving" when really you're only "gravedigging" thinking that it matters for the issue tracker. That's delirious.
