Can no longer recommend Google.

I purchased a Pixel 9 Pro brand new unlocked from the Google store. Every Pixel I have ever purchased came with some type of store credit when purchased using the Google store. I log into my account today to go to purchase something. It said my balance is 0. I contact support. I just through a million hurdles. Provided them about 50 screenshots. Then, I get told they will not give me my $200 in store credit because my original confirmation email was accidentally deleted. What a trip. I am like surely you guys have the invoice. They claim they do not and tell me there is nothing they can do for me.

I have advocated for this company since the Nexus days! I participated in Dev and Beta testing. Providing them with bug reports for YEARS! I am active in multiple Pixel subs. I have helped many people. I had another Reddit account that was like 12 years old but it got hacked. Just to get treated like a dog today. I had to ask the lady if she was AI that's how repetitive and unsympathetic she was about the whole situation. This is sickening. I paid almost full price for the phone when I had a big Best Buy gift card I could of used just to get the store credit! You guys can do better! You guys are offering the same promo on the 10!

I know you are just venting because as you are aware there's nothing any of us can do for you. Buttttt what I will say is it's worth reaching again or maybe even a third time because googles customer service is VERY inconsistent. So it might work out if you get the right person.

I was hoping maybe a good hearted person from Google would see this and reach out. Why downvote?

Store credit expires

rgrimjr41 OP • 6mo ago

It is normally 365 days I purchased it just a couple months ago.

Are you in the US? I haven't seen a $200 store credit promo since launch. All of the recent promotions have been straight price cuts.

rgrimjr41 OP • 6mo ago

Yes I am

whiterocker77 • 6mo ago

There must be a problem. The system will not delete store credits that are still valid. Google is not going to make $200 off of you. Not enough to pay the customer service staff.

Sorry I do not understand what you mean. Are you saying they aren't just going to hand over $200 because they wouldn't be able to pay their support staff? They do it on every new unlocked phone purchase.

whiterocker77 • 6mo ago

I guess you didn't notice that Google's credit expired. I mark the expiry date of the Google Store credit on my calendar. For so many years, there has been no problem.

rgrimjr41 OP • 6mo ago

Credit lasts for 365 days I only had my Pixel a couple months when I say couple I am talking like 3 or 4 months. I only have 20 some charge cycles.

It doesn't help your cause to ask the assistant if they are AI. They will work to rule.. be kind and courteous, someone might go above and beyond for you...

rgrimjr41 OP • 6mo ago

I was being very kind and curious until she kept asking for the same information over and over and over again. That is what made me think it was AI.

Pixel 4a

Google has been letting us veterans down for quite some time. I myself have been here since the Nexus days...and right around when the 6a came out and the removed the physical fingerprint reader and 3.5mm headphone jack, I've given up on them. I bought a 4a that I've been rocking since that 6a letdown and when my 4a is no longer usable, I will just get a Samsung Ax or a BraxxPhone.

Wife and I have been onboard since nexus 5. I have had issues with my P5, 6a, and now 8 (loose charging port) and her 8 had the line on her screen that I guess is covered by warranty for free unless you bought a warranty like we did and have to pay $80 for a replacement. Hoping the 10 improves things.

The credit received per order is noted in order details twice, in green text. I still have it on all my orders, even years old ones. You don't need an email to pull up those order details. Does your Pixel 9 Pro order details not have it?
