

Skip to main content r/GooglePixel × Search in r/GooglePixel

Create

r/GooglePixel • 1y ago
ApprehensiveAbies453

Cmon Google...

Bought the beautiful pixel 9 Pro Fold 2 months ago, and I've loved it, no issues at all.

One day, like any other day, I closed it up, put it on charge, then walked out. 10 minutes later I've walked back in, took it off charge, opened it up, and BAM. 3-4cm thick white line going across my screen!

I had a case on, a fully covering case. I went too my original vendor which was O2, and they said they could hear cracking when opening up the foldable. But how? I bought it, and got a case literally a day later, so why 2 months later it decides to break it, I don't know.

Worryingly, both Google and O2 both say " there's a chance that's not under warranty " but I could still put it in for repair, but there could be a fee. I can't stand and wait for over 2 weeks without a phone. 3 days at a Max. Is there any place in the UK that can fix Google phones under Google warranty??

Archived post. New comments cannot be posted and votes cannot be cast.

2

16

Share

AnalystPrep • Promoted

Preferred Prep for 2026 Success AnalystPrep – CFA Question Bank, Video Lessons, Study Notes, and Mock Exams

Sign Up

analystprep.com

Sort by: Best ▾

Search Comments

Spirited_Recover1748 • 1y ago
Pixel 10 Pro XL 📱

That's the main reason I've not got a foldable yet, I don't trust them.

Yes there are places that you can take pixels to get repaired under Google warranty. I suspect however ones that are able to fix foldables may be more limited (if any).

Google support told me of my closest repair centre when I had an issue with my previous P7P. If they aren't advising you of one maybe it's just that non local have that skillset/ability.

Good luck.

Edit: I'm in the UK

Skip to main content

Create

Yeah, foldable screen tech has never been fit for purpose. It's pretty much an open secret that it never got to the point of being reliable/durable enough for general use but too much money had been sunk into development to just abandon it. I understand why people like the idea of them, but buying one is a gamble that is heavily stacked against you.

RedditsNowTwitter • 1y ago

Honestly there's no foldable screen phone out that's reliable regardless. My mother has replaced the screen on her z fold 2 times and eventually just said she'll deal with it when it broke the 3rd time. It broke 3 times in 2 weeks.

Pure-Recover70 • 1y ago

G1; Nexus One,S,5X; Pixel 2XL,4a,6a,7Pro,8Pro,9ProXL

I wish they made a foldable phone that didn't have a foldable screen - just two normal edge-to-edge screens right next to each other (after unfolding) - I'd learn to ignore the crease - especially if it was horizontal. (something like the Microsoft Surface Duo Fold Flip)

[deleted] • 1y ago

Immature technology is prone to failure and higher than normal defect rates

[deleted] • 1y ago

A month account with no post history, alright

ApprehensiveAbies453 OP • 1y ago

Does that exactly matter???

u/John_Titor1998 • Promoted

Mother is calling...

View More

jttm.bandcamp.com

bruh-iunno • 1y ago

Skip to main content

Create

out there has had similar stories and issues, there are countless broken samsung foldables on ebay for example

ApprehensiveAbies453 OP • 1y ago

I plan on buying a Samsung s24 Ultra and switching

[deleted] • 1y ago

Thing is, they'll never be less fragile, it's an inherent part of the tech.

JackusGomux • 1y ago

I'm the UK I had a very bad experience with EE (tried to charge me £100 for something that was covered by warranty, and kept my phone for 3 days and was so hard to get it back) and then a very good experience with Victoria (he fixed it in 20 minutes under warranty)

ApprehensiveAbies453 OP • 1y ago

Victoria?

[deleted] • 1y ago

Victoria's Secret

JackusGomux • 1y ago

Hahaha saw this extremely late but meant the iFixit in victoria station lol

AtmosphereOk6968 • 1y ago

Sorry to hear, let us know how you get along. I was planning on getting a pixel fold 9 too but cannot justify the price tag atm.

mintvilla • 1y ago

My understanding is that EE has a contract with Google to do repairs, now most EE's will obviously not repair your phone there and then, it will be sent off, however there are some that will do it. There's one in Nottingham that will do it there and then, the wife had her screen replaced twice over the last few years (once under warranty, one not)

Create

With that being said, it was the normal Pixel, not the fold so I don't know if that's more difficult and has to be sent off