From Pixel 6, 7, 8, 9 to 10 Pro XL, Google still can't transfer or migrate data from one Pixel to another Pixel correctly.

I have Android phones since G'Nex, and using android pay even before it's called Google Pay. Migrating phones is not new for me but this has become an annoying thing every year or so.

The issue is mainly comes from the Google Pixel line, other manufacturers less so.

Every time I migrate from one Pixel to another, it misses documents, downloads folder, or apps that I want migrate, even I specifically said transfer all. Transfer was initiated via USB-C cable.

I must say it has become slightly better this year but still missed transferring PDFs, and documents. It also missed banking apps or some apps that I've used most often. I don't even know how the transfer algorithm works, because it just downloads it from the play store in the background.

I would think, it would check what was installed from the source phone and put/download the app from the Play Store, but there's no rhyme or reason why it would skip certain apps, especially banking.

Old SMS/MMS were not transferred either (RCS messages/images were ok) Photomojis that were created were not transferred, Google Map activity, Google Wallet (have to add each card), 2FAs apps (not really Google's fault on this one, but iphone 2 FAs transfer work right away)

My wife transferred from an old iphone to a new iphone and every app/documents/Apple Pay Card/Images were migrated without friction

I just don't understand why Google of all things cannot get this right.

Edit: Here's the transfer from Pixel 9 Pro XL to Pixel 10 Pro XL. I just want data transferred correctly, does not matter what the data is.

Sorry can't relate or replicate. I've exclusively used Pixels and never have any issues transferring everything. Guess I'm just lucky that way

Loud-Possibility4395 • 5mo ago

so tell how your Debit Cards been transferred like he says

sfcowboy • 5mo ago

One might posit that it's a good idea to have to reauthenticate payment cards on new devices. This seems like a feature rather than a bug.

Zantal • 5mo ago

For me it transferred the cards but had to be reactivated on the new phone

[deleted] • 5mo ago

Which it should do

Puzzleheaded_Sun7356 • 5mo ago

Exactly

0330_bupahs • 5mo ago

? Why would debit cards automatically transfer over from one device wallet to another? That's not how that works nor is it supposed to work that way. Layers of protection, even the annoying ones, exist to protect you. 🤔

Pixel 10 Pro

I transferred from Xperia 10 IV to Pixel 10 Pro and setup wizard moved everything messages, settings, dev settings, documents, payment cards though these had to be authorised to be used on new device, data and junk from SD card too as long as it was in default directories.

Am I one of few people who has like no issues with how things work?

It's actually the other way around.

Those that complain, come here to do so.

I too had an Xperia in the past, it was Arc S, I enjoyed that little device, music and camera were really good at that time!

Pixel 10 Pro XL

I've transferred from the OG Pixel XL to the 4 XL, from the 4 XL to the 5, from the 5 to the 7 Pro, and from the 7 Pro to the 10 Pro XL. Every time, no issues or problems. Maybe I'm just lucky. 🙌

Puzzleheaded_Sun7356 • 5mo ago

If you've ever worked for help desk it support. You'll realize how fucked up some people are. You can tell them to press the letter a and they'll press t. Because they thought the T looked like it needed to be pressed. So when oP states they can't do the data transfer. That doesn't surprise me.

It transfers but not everything gets transferred, I updated the post with a screenshot from the Files App.

I really don't want to deal with ADB push/pull every time Google misses the transfer.

Edit: Sorry I initially sent the thumbnail image for the link.

Pixel 10 Pro XL

I followed the prompts on the new phone. That was it. No USB cables, just had to make sure both phones were turned on. I don't even think it mattered if they were both on the same wifi network.

 squeak37 • 2mo ago doing a 6 --> 10 conversion now.

It transferred photos and vids, but apps didn't transfer (even though it says they did).

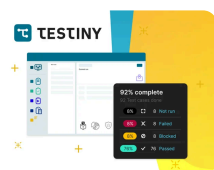

So I re-run with apps only. Still no transfer.

NGL it's very frustrating

I've transferred from pixel 6 to 7 to 9 and now 10, and haven't had any issues. I don't care about transferring PDFs and documents though.

 TurboFool • 5mo ago
Pixel 10 Pro Fold

Yeah, I would frankly never keep those purely offline. They'd be in Drive.

Do you have multiple Google accounts on the phone? The only time I have noticed apps not transferring was traced to an account that I didn't authenticate in the new phone.

I transfer to a new phone every couple years. I have never had an issue and I've been here since the start of the Google pixel line

Impossible_Box_7424 • 5mo ago

I have been doing this as long as I remember might be pixel 4 onwards never had an issue . Pixel 6,7 8 and then 10 all without missing any documents or app.

Surprises me how many people upgrade their Pixel every year with how minimal changes have become year after year.

It was only worth it with the trade-in and additional discount with google one credit.

Pixel 10 Pro Fold

Works great every time for me, going back years at this point. I haven't experienced anything you're describing, especially it just skipping apps entirely. No trouble here. It's an incredibly impressive process

I've never missed anything when doing these. You may need to restart and make sure that all of your boxes are checked.

Supapeach • 5mo ago

N6p > PXL > P6 > P8P > Pixel 10 Pro XL

I've never had issues going from pixel to pixel, even other android devices. There's expected stuff. Authenticator apps I know I have to do myself.

Payment cards have never transferred because they are encrypted to that specific device, which is consistent on other devices too. Apple does the same thing for Apple pay.

zakazak • 5mo ago

P8P P6P P4XL

Never had such issues. I just recently transfered two P10 devices from P5 and P8P without any issues.

Loud-Possibility4395 • 5mo ago

I agree - my transfer from Pixel 9 to 10 did not transfer anything apart of what was already in cloud (like photos or notes)

Aman_Sensei • 5mo ago

Doesn't Quick Share exist on pixel devices?

bfplayer OP • 5mo ago • Edited 5mo ago

Quick Share is not quick if I don't know what specific data is missing.

How do I even quickshare a photomoji from one phone to another? This should have been transferred also.

What method do you use to transfer pixel to pixel?

Just_Reflection_3821 • 5mo ago

As far as banking apps go, the banks have a security protocol that insists you 'release' the old phone authorisation before installing on the new.

When buying a new phone I take advantage of stripping out apps and data that is redundant.

devasilte • 5mo ago

I agree, I lost exactly the same between P6P and P10P : Photomojis and Maps activity. For banking apps and credit cards I think it's normal but it was a bit painful to do the process.

PurchaseCharming4269 • 5mo ago

Never had any of those issues. Must be you. Maybe too ok many Google accounts.

Bazirker • 5mo ago

Pixel 7 Pro

I actually had a great experience switching from my pixel 7 Pro to my pixel 10 Pro. Like, I was shocked. Yes I had to log into some apps, but most of my things actually ported straight over. I had a completely functional phone up and running 2 hours later, and I have to use a ton of hyper-specific apps related to my job. It was the smoothest phone transition I've ever had.

pspr33 • 5mo ago

And the iPhone does it from the cloud too right?

I ALWAYS recommend people on Android to never restore backups or use the transfer software as it either doesn't work correctly or messes something up along the way.

Huge PITA.

bfplayer OP • 5mo ago

Iphone to Iphone was done via USB3 Type C cable, it somehow transferred the data from the app, and downloaded the new version of app from the cloud as if it's 1:1 clone of the phone.

Skip to main contentCreate

Some apps did not transfer, nor the data from the app, i.e. video editing project files.

Puzzleheaded_Sun7356 • 5mo ago

Mine transferred without issue from a 7 to the 10 🙌

wonderfulwaffles22 • 2mo ago

What did you use to do the transfer?

Superb-Floor8902 • 2mo ago

It happened to me several times. Always missed the Document folder from the Files App. Also, Whatsapp transfer is a mess. Experiencing it again transferring from 8 Pro to 10 Pro XL.
