

Skip to main content r/GooglePixel Search in r/GooglePixel

Create

r/GooglePixel • 5mo ago

TvFarisTheGamerYT

...

Google Pixel really needs to step up their game.

I've been a Pixel user for a while, and honestly, it feels like Google is falling behind. Other brands are packing in better hardware, more polished software features, and longer-lasting battery life, better processor, etc, while Pixels still struggle with stuff like battery life, heating issues, and bugs that shouldn't exist this far into the lineup.

Yes, the AI features are nice, but they can't carry the phone forever. At this point, it feels like Google needs to either double down and actually compete at the flagship level or risk getting left in the dust by Apple and Samsung.

What do you guys think?

346

351

ShareEquo_Tech_Inc • Promoted

...

Bringing Modern Web Tech to Eclipse RCP Apps

Join the conversation

Sort by: Best ▾Search Commentstjalek • 5mo ago

We've been asking Google to step up for years.

Tensor processor and video quality have been a problem for like half a decade

258

Reply

Final_Priority99 • 5mo ago

Yeah and Google's solution to that is video boost that basically costs money and it sucks and takes days to get your video back. They should have put that time and effort and work on the video system on the phone.

gadgetluva • 5mo ago

Pixel 9 Fold

Skip to main content

Create

phones are good enough, iPhones, iPhones are good enough, and they just read on Commi...

Ghostttpro • 5mo ago

Catching up in video is hard. For the US I would say Samsung is right behind them. If iPhone video was a 10/10 I would say Samsung is 8.7/10. The detail is there, stabilization is great.

It's just the processing that be a little washed out. Kind of looking like Chinese phones with great hardware, the video software needs improvements. The fact that there is no Log and 4k60 hdr makes me feel like it's a hardware issue.

In a very few conditions I find the Pixel video to be better than Samsung because of the color processing.. But it needs a alot of work. The way is darkens every thing, makes things orange, and the jitter us insane.

2 more replies

acid-burn2k3 • 5mo ago

100000% All the web based stuff should just completely disappear. If I buy a 1200€ phone fuck I expect the magic to happen directly on my phone.

NGF86 • 5mo ago

What's wrong with the video on pixels?

CitySlickerCowboy • 5mo ago

Pixel 8 Pro

Was thinking the same. These people act like they're creating movies for Universal Studios or something.

chlldpt • 5mo ago

Pixel 10 Pro

I graduated college in 2019 and the latest iPhone would blow away the DSLR camera I was using in College. It's no joke that you can make a movie on an iPhone if you know what you're doing. We live in a world now where most of the content is actually not produced by large studios like Universal, they're made by creators and influencers with their phones a lot of the time.

6 more replies

aSystemOverload • 5mo ago

Quality of what video?

Skip to main contentCreate

Why is there always a comment at the top of these posts saying "it's Tensor"

Is this some sort of astroturfing effort?

How do people explain apps like MotionCam? Do they imagine it can take better video by downloading a different processor?

tjalek • 5mo ago

Downloading a different processor made me laugh.

Well evidently Pixel can do better video because of Motion Cam.

Why Google doesn't implement this into the native app. We don't know.

Regardless of video pipeline. Tensor isn't known for its speed either relative to the competition.

So. What gives?

HolmesToYourWatson • 5mo ago

I wish I knew. They're clearly struggling w/ video. You'd think a company w/ the kind of resources Google has could manage to implement some of what that app does... but apparently not?

I'm a little intimidated by it (I'm definitely not interested in shooting raw), but if I get a Pixel 10, I'll probably spring for MotionCam.

1 more reply

1 more reply

3 more replies

Capt_Blahvious • 5mo ago

I was just reading about Apple's in-ear translation function and recall reading Pixel had something similar a few years ago. I looked it up and pixel will translate but it will not translate the other language to your native language in your ear.

Why!? All the tech is there. Take the extra step and finish it and make Babel fish come true.

ActualNin • 5mo ago

Do you mean the Google Translate app? It's has had live conversation translate since August. It works fine with bluetooth earbuds

Skip to main content+ Create

Pixel 10 Pro

Neither will Apple, at least not into/from my language.

+ 1 more reply1millionnotameme • 5mo ago

Coming from Samsung S23 Ultra, I've actually loved the pixel, the only problem I encountered was the mobile network dropping but everything else is great, especially love the software and clean look. It feels essentially the same as my Samsung speed wise but things like Android Auto and maps etc are faster. I think all OSs have bugs, my Samsung certainly did, it just depends what you prioritise and buy based on that.

techraito • 5mo ago

Pixel 9

Top 1% Commenter

Yea, Samsungs always feel "bloated" to me in the back of my mind. Even though I know they aren't, all of the Samsung apps and even Galaxy Theme store makes it feels closer to an Asian phone in a western market (I mean it is lol).

Reiskanzler3000 • 5mo ago

Technically they're all asian phones lol. But I get your point. When I fired up my new a52 for the first time and checked the list of pre-installed apps I was kinda shocked.

GundamOZ • 5mo ago

Mobile Network is pretty dang important.

warner_zama • 5mo ago

I laughed. Another minor issue is that the phone gets hot only when in use 😂

+ 1 more reply1millionnotameme • 5mo ago

Yeah it is lol, I had to switch networks which is a pretty big compromise (I suspect it could be the sim but cba cancelling it and getting an esim), but I've had no other bugs with the device

u/PlugableOfficial • Promoted

Skip to main content

Create

windowscentral.comYoYoNupe1911 • 5mo ago

Pixel Fold

We always see posts like this when the new iPhones come out then a month later from now the Reddit is flooded with people talking about how they miss Android and don't like iOS. It's just people FOMOing when something new comes out.

Altruistic_Fruit2345 • 5mo ago

I'm buying a camera instead of a new Pixel. As much as I'd love to do all my photography on my phone, I've reached the limits of what a P8P can do, and Google has stopped improving the hardware.

1 more replypdimri • 5mo ago

Until Google changes its mindset towards Tensor to be only an AI chip and rest doesn't matter. Nothing is going to change. You will have the same old gripes- video, modem, battery life, gaming.

Narrow-Addition1428 • 5mo ago

It's not an AI chip.

It's a budget chip.

By putting this piece of crap into the phone, Google saves $170 compared to buying a Snapdragon Elite chip.

Does it make the phone cheaper? No. Google just pockets this difference while selling the inferior product to us at full price.

oxidao • 5mo ago

True, the AI chip thing is a blatant lie, any top tier snapdragon is clearly better than the tensor in AI workloads

It's a shame bc pixels are the only phone that I like

Narrow-Addition1428 • 5mo ago

Yes, same here. I don't like Samsung's design style.

Skip to main content

Create

oxidao • 5mo ago

same, also dont like samsung camera (colours too unrealistic and too much sharpness). i dont like Apple also, no universal back gesture and specially no sideloading kills it for me (it feels like you dont own your phone)

2 more replies

xMaxMOx • 5mo ago

Pixel 10 Pro

Nexus and pixel phones were always software driven granted the hardware was better back then. However I feel like Google is going for the whole experience of software and hardware working together with AI. I love my 10 pro. I look for more than just hardware when choosing my device. I look for the whole experience and the pixel gives me that which is why I've had every Pixel except the first one and the 7 pro. By all means if you're a user that needs to have the best everything hardware wise than purchase an iPhone or a Samsung.

1 more reply

TuTentakman • 5mo ago

Pixel 8 Pro

Companies like OnePlus achieved in a few short years what goggle has been unable to do in 15 with a basically unlimited budget.

Unfortunately the little g is an advertising corporation. The Pixel lineup is just bum fluff for them. They could be the amazing with just a little effort.

Pygmy_Nuthatch • 5mo ago

OnePlus receives giant subsidies from the Chinese Government. They don't have to turn a profit, they are supported by a nation-state.

TuTentakman • 5mo ago • Edited 5mo ago

Pixel 8 Pro

And Google has a market capitalisation of 3 Trillion US dollars. I'm sure they can afford to do better.

I agree OnePlus receives support from Oppo, etc. but that doesn't excuse the big g from making more of an effort. It seems like their heart just isn't in it. Or possibly they have the wrong people in charge. I really do want Google to succeed. I don't have all the answers, but to me it seems like they are just taking the piss. All I'm seeing is outright greed from a company that once said "Don't be Evil"

2 more replies

Skip to main content

Create

care about more than AI and certain customization things on the pixels. I did kinda wanna wait for the 11 series to come out to see if they would finally fix the same issues they had for years, but with the pixel 7 now facing battery swelling issues I want to get rid of it before mine does that.

CaptainMarder • 5mo ago

Pixel 8,6,3,1, Nexus6p,5

Agreed! I'm waiting for my refund of the 10pro to go through then gonna pick up the iphone 17 too. Apple putting pro hardware in a base phone. Wake up google, drop your price or improve your hardware.

wichwigga • 5mo ago

Pixel 9

It would be pretty pathetic to not drop the prices at this point, but Google might be that arrogant.

CaptainMarder • 5mo ago

Pixel 8,6,3,1, Nexus6p,5

Yup. They lost me as a customer. I've cancelled my AI pro subscription too, when my parents pixels are eol I'll switch them to iPhones too.

+ 1 more replyYouthOtherwise6936 • 5mo ago

Me too. Returned the P10. Google actually refunded me in 1 day. Picking up the IP17 today. Never had an iPhone so am nervous but I wanna try it.

Unhappy-Zombie-6531 • 5mo ago

I have also canceled it, in Spain I bought the pixel 10 pro XL the day they announced it but however they do not start serving it until September 21. On Friday I canceled it even without receiving it and I'm going to get an iPhone. What a shame, I would have liked to continue with pixel but I don't think it is the best choice...

+ 1 more reply+ 5 more repliesacid-burn2k3 • 5mo ago

Well I've tried to switch to pixel... had my iPhone 16 pro max. But I'm returning it, gaming not possible, the phone was great tho, great U.I etc but Jesus. A 1200€ phone not able to game properly without melting my hands ? Are we in 2016 lol

WatchfulApparition • 5mo ago

Skip to main contentCreateOnkel24 • 5mo ago • Edited 5mo ago

Regardless, a 1000 $ device should handle basic wait-for-the-train games without getting toasty, but here we are.

4 more replies

5 more replies

The_Superfluous • 5mo ago

Dang, that sucks.

With regards to the battery swelling, you need to contact Google directly.

They will ask you to send photos of your phone (from different angles and especially from the side, of course) to see if the battery truly is swelling. Afterwards, they will send you a refurbished model for free.

I had a Pixel 5 with battery swelling, read about this, tried it out. Lo and behold, it worked.

2 more replies

ComfortableTrue6449 • 5mo ago

I'm a pixel 7 owner myself and still wondering which one I should get out of iPhone 17 and pixel 10 pro. The 10 pro on black friday will be about $700 for 128gb and $800 for 256. And I would also have the option for a better trade in value with the pixel. This has been going on in my head ever since the iPhone came out

TheNimbleKindle • 5mo ago

Pixel 10 Pro XL

Have you used an iPhone before? I do for work a 16 PM at the moment and I could never. I am also disappointed with the 10, but the keyboard alone is keeping me within the Android ecosystem. There are pros and cons of course, but all in all I much prefer Google's OS. So I at least recommend trying the iPhone out somewhere.

5 more replies

3 more replies

7 more replies

Correct_Concept7754 • 5mo ago

I guess I'm the minority here who left Apple and went with the Pixel 10 Pro XL and I'm loving it lol.

Skip to main contentCreateTop 1% Commenter

I went from iPhone to pixel and have no regrets. My guess is a lot of these posts are from people who have only ever used Pixels and always assume the grass is greener while never actually trying anything else.

FaultFlimsy9338 • 5mo ago

6 more replies

u/DriverDashcamApp • Promoted

We pay drivers for dash cam footage to help make roads safer. Interested?

Sign Updrivertechnologies.comCaptainMarder • 5mo ago

Pixel 8,6,3,1, Nexus6p,5

Tbh, a lot of the ai features are a gimmick too and many don't work properly or as advertised. If you're in a spotty network area with low data speeds, the Ai is useless cause a lot of it requires google servers.

Past-Weakness-5304 • 5mo ago • Edited 3mo ago

quicksand consider market seemly unite marble close pause existence workable

This post was mass deleted and anonymized with Redact

1 more reply

simplydan24 • 5mo ago

Pixel 10 Pro XL

I personally don't use any of the AI features. I just don't pay any attention to them. For me personally I prefer the Pixel UI look and feel over anything else.

7 more replies

Scarboroughwarning • 5mo ago

Google and their subscription shit, with the AI....it's their focus. They want the subscription cash. Which, if their phones were priced cheaply, you could half understand.

But when the phones are priced high, the hardware and software should be exceptional.

Skip to main contentCreate

The Pixel series need decent processors and GPUs.

1 more reply

BatmanSpiderman • 5mo ago

honestly they should go back to snapdragon for pixel 11, their cpu is not ready to compete with them just yet

Exact_Ad942 • 5mo ago

They have to catch up with 256GB base storage since iPhone 17 is kicking their ass with it, and stop region-locking their killer features.

Krigen89 • 5mo ago

I had a Nexus 4, 5, Pixel 2XL, Pixel 4, Pixel 7 Wife had a Nexus 5, Pixel 3A, 5A, 7A

Big fans of Pixels overall. I just got a OnePlus 13. Hardware is SO. MUCH. BETTER, software is 90% as good I'd say. Camera maybe 85% as good, definitely better than friends' Samsungs... Probably on par with iPhones, though more "hit or miss".

Google been asking us for a long time to be paying more money for substantially worse phones. Redemption came from the camera mostly, but they've stagnated. I'm done.

1 more reply

disputeaz • 5mo ago

Just switched to pixel this year and enjoying it.

R10T • 5mo ago

Pixel 6 Pro

I'm honestly a bit confused why this community isnt more gung-ho on iPhone running Google apps and services. I know it's not all "native" and may require an extra tap every so often, but I've been doing that on my iPad mini for a few months and am seriously considering an iPhone 17.

2 more replies

theblooray • 5mo ago

Skip to main contentCreate

good look at their call screening feature.

I use iPads and Apple TV and with the Pixel in-between there's always a disconnect. Certain apps can behave a little buggy with zero issues on my wife's iPhone. But, Gboard, universal back gesture and most importantly call screening is the reason I keep hanging with them.

The cpu is definitely slow once again. Especially when connected to my car for Android Auto, it starts to choke quick.

If iOS call screening works well, then for now I'll have to look past the Pixel.

sleepymoose318 • 5mo ago

Pixel 9

i have an iPhone and the call screening works good so far.

+ 5 more replies

xendofnothing • 5mo ago

I had an iPhone 16 Pro on the iOS 26 beta until getting my Pixel 10 and the Pixel is far better at spam detection and screening than the iPhone, at least for me. And I get a lot of spam calls.

+ 1 more reply

kudlitan • 5mo ago

I like my pixel because it doesn't have all the extra Samsung stuff.

+ 4 more replies

Throwitaway701 • 5mo ago

Bit ironic given apple's launch last year was literally nothing but AI bullshit that wasn't even ready for months afterwards

Mech6411 • 5mo ago

Or never came out.

Registered-Redditer • 5mo ago

I've had so many issues software quality wise where I've had to do numerous warranty claims on all of my Pixel phones it's pathetic. I've been wanting to be a loyal customer, but it's hard.

Skip to main contentCreatePixel 8 Pro

Counter point: I have had almost every model since the Nexus 1 and have never had a warranty claim. Now, Pixel Bud 2 Pros.... different story

slaia • 5mo ago

Pixel 8

Same here. I belong to the lucky ones, who by chance always get perfect devices without issues.

BTW similarly with Ubuntu on my machines. Other people always have something to complain about. And mine just works.

mashuto • 5mo ago

Pixel 7 Pro

Don't be a "loyal" customer. Just use whatever works best for you. If it's not pixel, there are luckily other devices available.

chhuang • 5mo ago

Pixel 7

never be loyal, it doesn't benefit. I've jumped Apple, HTC, Samsung, and now Google. Looking where to go next when it stopped providing what I want

1 more reply

15 more replies

Captain2Sea • 5mo ago

They don't care about us. Just don't buy pixel anymore. That's the only correct solution.

DeeplyProfound_ • 5mo ago

I've got the 8 pro and im due and upgrade. but whats the point? spend a thousand to get a phone that is pretty much the same?

the 11 is gonna have to be something special.

[deleted] • 5mo ago

weird. my pixel 10 pro xl doesnt struggle with battery life, has no heating issues and so far has no bugs.

look its really simple, if you dont like what pixels do, dont buy a pixel.

no one will come kick your door down for not liking a pixel.

Skip to main content+ Create

The pixel slaps

fr373969 • 5mo ago

iPhone 17 base with 256g is the nail in the Pixel coffin

phrequenc • 5mo ago

hear me out, if Samsung had an option for pixel os....

1manbandman • 5mo ago

Cry harder. Go get a different phone and leave the sub.

Tired of these posts.

+ 4 more replies

TheVeganAdam • 5mo ago

Good point, it's amazing this isn't posted 5-10 times a day or more in this sub. Oh wait, it is.

+ 1 more reply

sdcumb • 5mo ago

Pixel 9a

I've had the 3aXL, 5a, 7a and now the 9a with no issues. My 9a has been hot a couple of times, which never happened before. Are you specifically talking about the 10 and 10 Pro series? I've found the a series to be a good feature set for the price.

lilly_wonka61 • 5mo ago

You know what really made me go , "That's enough. I'm switching back to iOS"? It's the frkn apps that are not utilizing full screen, and you see a different color where the swipe bar is. It's absolutely nuts. I was like , "Okay, they'll fix this." But nope. I frkn love that phone, but the software optimization for 3rd-party apps like Amazon jittering scrolling, the apps not being full screen, pisses me off.

+ 1 more reply

Skip to main contentCreate

have been trash since the 6p.. certainly would still choose it over an iPhone anyday but I am sure there are better androids out there.

DontBankWithEvolve • 5mo ago

They have too much layoffs. So much they have to reuse the phone design every year

daab2g • 5mo ago

I think you're recycling pretty much the only consensus topic here.

YoYoNupe1911 • 5mo ago

Pixel Fold

More polished software is a lie. Nothing is better than Google Android right now. It's not even close.

+ 1 more replyBifanaTropicalista • 5mo ago

Pixel 10 was a let down for me too. I'll keep my Pixel 8.

Damn-Sky • 5mo ago

got a used pixel 7 ... was expecting something seamless .... software is good but hardware damn.. it's disappointing ... fingerprint sensor is shit, battery is bad and this thing heats up so much.

+ 1 more replyYJX94 • 5mo ago

Pixel 9 Pro XL

They're already in the dust.

Don't keep expecting them to get better, switch to the other phones that are better and have what you need and if Pixel improves and gets on the same level as them then switch back.

It's not worth stressing over.

HOSS_AGAINST • 5mo ago

Skip to main contentCreate occasionally view files, and take pictures. I have a 6a and the pictures are better than $500 point and shoot cameras 10-15yrs ago. This phone is more than I need.

Imallvol7 • 5mo ago

I haven't had Pixel yet even though I had every Nexus phone. Feels like they kept the Nexus mentality but changed to flagship price.

cjeremy • 5mo ago

former Pixel fanboy

we all know they won't. they're ecstatic about having 4% of the market right now. I gave up years ago.

ScubadooX • 5mo ago

Couldn't agree more. Google has gotten very complacent and by pricing their Pixels as flagships — which, hardware-wise they're not — they've made the Pixels uncompetitive. Apple's iPhone 17 launch made Google's Pixel 10 launch look like a non-event.

Darkpriest667 • 5mo ago

Nexus 4,5,6P Pixel 3XL,6,10XL

I think a phone is a phone and shouldn't be used for heavy lifting. It texts, does basic apps fine, gives me great photos and translated for me in Italy , Taiwan, and the Philippines (Pixel 6) The 10XL is really good so far. Something is eating the battery but i'll figure that out.

Apple's live translation to your earpods? I'd want to see it work in a Vietnamese nail salon accurately before buying into it.

CravingKoreanFood • 5mo ago

Or pixel needs to just lower the price back down.

DestinyInDanger • 5mo ago

So what phone would you recommend instead of the Pixel and Samsung Galaxy? Because I'm ready to upgrade and I'm sick of seeing people trash all the latest phones. It makes it confusing and hard to decide. I'm coming from a Samsung Galaxy S20 and I was considering the pixel because I loved my Pixel 2.

Sadly all the complaining about pixel and Galaxy make me just want to get a Motorola Edge or the Razr and take the opposite route.

Skip to main contentCreate

Yes, it's the worst phone ever. Except for all the others.

Tintn00 • 5mo ago

Increasing prices with lagging hardware. Sounds typical of conglomerate

ModulusFlea • 5mo ago

Pixel has lost me at this point. I have zero interest in anything AI, and this is the sole road they're going down, so I'm off to either the iPhone 17 or Oppo Find X9

Barely of these so called AI features are actually AI in the true sense. It's just a mid 20's buzzword that will hopefully fuck off soon.

I don't care about Google telling me what's on my calendar, or artificially 'improving' photos. Just gimme a top end processor, a big battery, a camera with a 1 inch sensor and a clean version of Android. The rest is noise IMO.

YouthOtherwise6936 • 5mo ago iPhone 17 using Qualcomm X80 modem. Talk about top notch hardware

MGDuck • 5mo ago

Broken Mobile Data

I feel that basic hardware functionalities are completely neglected at this point and it's a hit or miss, with no relevant quality control across pretty much all models and their parts. My Pixel 6a has network issues which practically render it useless in everyday use due to constantly disconnecting mobile data across all networks. I'm definitely not alone. I've never had or heard of other phones affected by such problems, except for several recent Google Pixel models, of course. I guess the carriers are tired of dealing with this, too. Then, the battery explosion issue came along and my device was potentially affected.

After receiving a decent financial compensation for the forced update which cripples battery life in the long term, I decided to give Google another chance. While my new Pixel 9 doesn't seem to have poor mobile data, WiFi or Bluetooth connections so far, the location accuracy is an absolute disaster, with notable drift (which the Pixel 6a has as well), as well as random drops which even some much cheaper older phones don't have. Since software updates don't fix anything, it's most likely poor hardware again. However, I doubt that this alone is enough to request a repair or replacement, since it's hard to detect such issues below a certain threshold, although they do make a difference in daily use.

Seemingly, all Google cares about at this point is scraping user data (as always) and offering software-based solutions, including cloud storage and AI. Also, since this company is known for shutting down services when they're deemed unprofitable or when they just want to move on, I wouldn't count on their promises to provide their Android software and security updates for Google Pixel in the long term. Even if

Create

DITPiranha • 5mo ago

The other ecosystems are crappy/bloated or too niche. Would love more performance but it isn't necessary.

vkr587 • 5mo ago

I got into pixel phones because they were good phones for the price. But now new pixels cost as much as a flagship phone but with inferior hardware. That's why my next phone won't be a pixel.

IndividualDay5463 • 5mo ago

I'm wavering on just switching back to my OnePlus 13. The battery on the Google Pixel 10 Pro XL is crap. The slow charging compounds the issue. The AI spam functions are great as is the face unlock. But other than that I can't think of anything that Google is doing better than my OnePlus.

PienerCleaner • 5mo ago hate apple. samsung gives me ick. ready to consider something else after years of pixel. reccomend me something please