

Skip to main content r/GooglePixel × Search in r/GooglePixel

Create

r/GooglePixel • 3mo ago
Danger_Fandango

...

New Pixel User Here...

I made the swap from iPhone because I was growing sick of the direction that iPhone was going with their iOS and the latest one pushed me over the edge...

I got the Pixel Pro 10 XL and I am enjoying it very very much. It's got features that I could never have imagined on my iPhone (not an exaggeration) and it's been a great experience thus far and I'm proud to say I'm happily converted and plan to stick with Pixel as I don't care for Samsung phones.

My big question now is... What smartwatch should I use? I loved my Apple Watch but now it doesn't work with my choice of phone and I don't know where to start.

I don't like Pixel Watch from what I've seen and Galaxy Watch seems ok but I'm thinking something completely different...

Thus far I'm really looking at the Garmin Venu X1.

It's a nice familiar shape and seemingly bigger too than my previous Apple Watch Ultra 2 which is a plus because I prefer larger watches.

What other recommendations are out there? Looking to see what others might know about that I do not.

Thanks in advance!

↑ 109 ↓

70

Share

hostkey-com • Promoted

...

Minecraft VPS - High-performance server

Sign Up

hostkey.com

Join the conversation

Sort by: Best ▾

🔍 Search Comments

viippeerr • 3mo ago

Garmin!!!!

Skip to main content

Create

pair my watch brand with my phone" compulsion forever.

maxpwns • 3mo ago

I was a die hard Apple Watch Ultra fan. It got old quick after all these years charging ever day or two. Eventually you realized you don't need all these features.

Went instinct tactical 2 solar and boy chafing every 40 days is NICE.

My criteria was good battery life, flash light, heart rate sensor and notifications for texts. Checked all these boxes and then some. In summer it easily lasts forever as we live an active life with the kids.

Rathskellarington • 3mo ago

What's going on with you that chafing occurs so routinely that it happens every 40 days?

maxpwns • 3mo ago

I need baby powder obviously.

noXreturnzz • 3mo ago

If you want something that works similar to an iPhone and apple watch combo; Then you really can't beat the Pixel Watch. Since you don't like Pixel Watch though, definitely go with Garmin, it's a great brand. When i switched to Pixel it was between a Garmin and a pixel watch for me.

schnokobaer • 3mo ago

Pixel 8

I'm unsure why the Pixel Watch was dismissed at the outset without any reason. Doesn't really help recommending something when you don't know why something is disqualified.

DSCarter_Tech • 3mo ago

Pixel 8 Pro

I too was looking for more explanation here until I read the OP had the Ultra previously and likes big watches. That made it pretty clear why he wouldn't prefer the Pixel Watch.

noXreturnzz • 3mo ago

OP stated that after looking around he doesn't feel like he'd like the Pixel watch. I personally believe not liking something is a good enough reason to recommend something else. Possibly, you may believe that there needs to be a reason different than just not liking something.. It's the joy of consumerism.

Skip to main content+ Createhopjockins • 3mo ago

The reason given about not liking something helps make a proper recommendation. You're trying to excuse laziness as "consumerism".

noXreturnzz • 3mo ago

But, OP did give a reason. I recommend it based on said reason, while still suggesting the pixel watch. Further, that is my opinion, it doesn't make my recommendation any less "proper", but if that makes me lazy, I'm all for it 😊.

hopjockins • 3mo ago

You gave a very general statement "you may believe that there needs to be a reason different than just not liking something.. it's the joy of consumerism." "Not liking" is a classification, not a reason.

I just find this statement very bad consumerism. Generally you should know what you want or don't want and have a reason. This saves time. If you don't want to explain because it's tiring, or to withhold information for a reason, then that's ok, but I would describe that as lazy or purposeful, more than likely just laziness. When you are asking for advice information helps others answer or recommend. But for a salesman, sure, they're still going to make recommendations.

The rest of what you said is fine.

Danger_Fandango OP • 2mo ago

The biggest reason for me is the shape of the Pixel Watch and to my knowledge they don't come in very large sizes. I don't like the overtly round "teardrop" look. It's a big detractor for me.

Ok_Newt_9777 • 3mo ago

I'm using Garmin and it pairs well with Pixel. The only thing is at the start, the watch's gps will take awhile to calibrate so your stats will feel a little off.. but you just need to keep using it till it does.

Jaded-Ad7561 • 3mo ago

That sorta depends more on which Garmin, some rely on your phone for a GPS connection to initiate quickly, I don't know why. My Fenix 5 Plus doesn't rely on the phone and connects in seconds.

Skip to main contentCreatecloud.vast.aiSign UpJerseyFire55 • 3mo ago • Edited 3mo ago

If you like battery life, forget the usual brands and check out garmin. I switched to iPhone last year and still use my garmin. It's a vivoactive ...something. It won't have the most vibrant display but you can forget to charge it and not be concerned.

GroundbreakingTap24 • 3mo ago

Came here to say this. My Garmin Instinct goes 10 days on a charge and does everything I need. Check out Garmin!

atrixus • 3mo ago

Pixel 9 Pro XL

what exact model?

GroundbreakingTap24 • 3mo ago

I have the Instinct 2. 3 is the current model on sale.

bicyclemom • 3mo ago

Came here to say this. The software takes some getting used to but Garmin watches are hard to beat for battery life and depth of information provided.

Colinav1 • 3mo ago

I have a Garmin Epix Gen 2.

It's a fantastic watch and the battery life is amazing. I much prefer it over the Apple watch I had before switching to android.

The other great thing about Garmin is their customer service. A couple of months ago (21 months after buying the watch) one of the buttons stopped working. I called Garmin to see if there were any repair options as it was out of warranty, instead they just sent me out a new watch. The phone call lasted less than 10 mins and I received a new watch 3 days later.

Skip to main contentCreate

I'm very happy with my Pixel 4 watch. Battery life. Quick charging. Functionality. All work for me.

u/getstream_io • Promoted

Clone the repo. Run the demos. Build your own Vision Agent.

View More

github.com

FoeHammer131 • 3mo ago

I got a Garmin instinct 3 solar. It's great.

I wanted a less smart smart watch. Just track my steps and workouts (which just consists of walks and runs and sometimes an occasional hike). I also wanted to track my sleep since I never could with an apple watch since I had to charge it every night. I turned off all notifications from my phone and it's just a watch that tracks my steps and sleep. And the battery lasts 30+ days (for the settings I use) I love it.

I switched over from iPhone and apple stuff a month ago and don't regret it.

So my set up is a Garmin instinct watch and pixel 10 pro xl and couldn't be happier 👍

Jeffreyknows • 3mo ago

Yeah I switched to pixel from iPhone and got a pixel watch to go with it. It's alright but if you really loved Apple watch it doesn't compare at all unfortunately. I use oura and feel like it tracks better.

However the watch faces in the pixel 4 are the most beautiful of every seen

keenlyproper_demeanr • 3mo ago

I recently switched from iPhone 16 pro to pixel 10 pro. On the contrary, the primary reason I made a switch is due to pixel watch. 4. Apple Watch is good, but the Pixel Watch is much better, at least in my case. The Pixel Watch 4 has this dome display, which looks so cool and also snuggles around your wrist. It's much more comfortable than the Apple Watch during sleep.

Also, I'm curious, what did you get sick of from iPhone? To me, the liquid s whatever they're getting into, absolutely hate it. Of course the watch, there is no difference from Apple watch 6 to Apple watch 11.

YoYoNupe1911 • 3mo ago

Pixel Fold

Skip to main content

Create

constantly ask Gemini things throughout the day like telling it to set reminders, send messages, and etc. When I wake up in the morning I fire up Gemini. I say "hey Gemini let's set up my schedule for today" then he asks me what I would like to schedule. I run off my whole day and times I want to do things in a natural conversation and Gemini makes my whole schedule for me and it shows on my At a Glance widget when the task is near. The At a Glance widget is clutch for me.

bravegirl2 • 3mo ago

Pixel user here with a Garmin Vivoactive watch

NizarNoor • 3mo ago

Pixel 10 Pro

I love the Pixel Watch. It's gorgeous and the Fitbit features are very accurate since Pixel Watch 3 onwards.

bleh10 • 3mo ago

It's got features that I could never have imagined on my iPhone

Im interested in hearing your perspective, like what are the best features that you found in pixel that you've never imagined to be on iphone

Danger_Fandango OP • 3mo ago

Better AI integration for one. Gemini is way better than Siri in my thus far short experience.

The level of customization is far more vast as well. I can actually set a fuckin wallpaper without the top of it getting blurred out. All in all it's just a better experience. Security features blow Apple out of the water too.

bleh10 • 3mo ago

I see, ive been considering giving iPhones a try so im double checking what features I'll miss 🌈

namerankserial • 3mo ago

Gemini is integrated into the Pixel Watch as well. IF that helps move it back into consideration.

UncleCarolsBuds • 3mo ago

Skip to main contentCreateBecauseBatman01 • 3mo ago

I'm hesitating making the switch from iPhone. Almost everyone said they tried it and went back. What is making you stay? I'm curious.

teniente_dan • 3mo ago

The consistent back button experience. The polished system. The freedom of customization.

Colinav1 • 3mo ago

For me it's that my phone is now set up exactly how I want it, not how Apple wants it set up. Customisation is in a completely different league. I've even got a couple of custom launchers which I switch between from time to time, though I generally always return to the pixel launcher.

It's just that choice which you don't get with Apple.

bbqsox • 3mo ago • Edited 3mo ago

I'm not OP, but I got my 10 Pro XL the day before launch. The keyboard, notifications, and generally more intelligent OS kept me.

-peas- • 3mo ago

>Almost everyone said they tried it and went back.

I find this is typical with people who try Samsung or OnePlus without first going to a Pixel. Pixel should be every Apple users first choice, and after you know how Android works, Samsung and OnePlus are more comfortable to switch to if wanted.

I've seen too many iPhone users get Samsung and OnePlus and immediately move back to iPhone after a short time.

[deleted] • 3mo ago • Edited 3mo agonull4end • 3mo ago

I followed a similar path, but went with the Pixel Fold 10. I loved my Apple Watch Ultra 3, but have really enjoyed the Pixel Watch 4 45mm. The readability of this compared to the Apple Watch is great and the battery has held up well. I mostly miss the variety of bands on the Apple Watch now but otherwise haven't looked back.

Skip to main content+ Create branded but they're lots cheaper. I got some replacement ones for my Pixel watch 2.

arniepalmy • 3mo ago

Pixel Watch 4 is the best watch I've ever used in my life. And I've tried many smartwatches. It is almost enough to get me to switch full time to my P10 Pro XL

It's laughably better than the $800 Apple Watch Ultra 3 in my experience. And it's half the price or less with Black Friday sales and 2 years of free data.

tjharman • 3mo ago

Pixel 7 Pro

Funny, I'm about to go in the opposite direction. I'm fed up with Google and how all the reasons we chose them originally have gone. Ads in Wallpaper apps, Play Store is RIDDLED with Ads. I'm at 80% storage of my 200G Google One plan and it nags me every day about how I'm "nearly out of space". Sorry google 40G is not "nearly out of Space" - They're stopping sideloading or at least making it super difficult.

The hardware hasn't gotten any better, still terrible Exynos modems. Yes, they work, but not very well. I've had a Google Pixel 1, a Pixel 4XL and currently have a 7 Pro. The 4XL really was the sweet spot I think.

I'm not really looking forward to going to Apple. The battery life will be nice, the price won't be.

As for watches, I've got a Garmin Fenix 6 Pro (quite old now) and it's worked fantastically with both my P4 and my current P7. I love I can answer calls with it, something I'll miss with an Apple Phone. It's not a "Smart Watch" though really, it shows notifications and can do a few very basic things. But it's really a Fitness watch with a smattering of smart features. The app store for it is terrible and the apps are pretty bad - a function of the fact that they're not really well designed for 3rd party apps.

Pr0t- • 3mo ago

Change your dns to adguard both on your home router and on your phone. And you will never see an ad again.. anywhere

tjharman • 3mo ago

Pixel 7 Pro

I run my own AdguardHome server and I have it set in PrivateDNS, doesn't matter if I'm at home or out on mobile it works. It doesn't block ads in the playstore. It does block ads in the browser etc though.

historymaking101 • 3mo ago

Depends on your priorities. I'm wearing a Pixel Watch 3 XL, because the 3 and 4 have the best sleep tracking vs medical testing (especially for those with documented sleep issues, a group which includes me

Skip to main contentCreate

That emphasis on sleep was why I switched over from my Garmin watch with was good with exercise, and had a much longer battery life, but was NOT good with sleep tracking. If I was a serious fitness nut, there's a huge ecosystem that also works with it, and that would make it the most accurate watch for fitness but I'm not there.

One of the most important things with a smartwatch, if you're using it for health reasons is to look at actual testing data and accuracy, any of the reviewers that say any watch tests or measures something without checking the measurements against a more reliable source isn't worth listening to. That source can't just be another watch.

The Quantified Scientist <https://www.youtube.com/@TheQuantifiedScientist>

Is the best place to start. He's research scientist and PhD student working in biomedical that is doing this as best he can for not his day job. I did a bit of deeper digging and paper reading besides that, but he's probably all that was realistically necessary for me, and probably for you as well.

CurrencyCheap • 3mo ago

What features? I've been part since pixel 9 I haven't seen any cool thing 🤔

Alatain • 3mo ago

Pixel 10 Pro

You haven't really given any idea of what you want from a smart watch. What do you not like about the Pixel watch that you did like about the Apple one?

jhoff80 • 3mo ago

Garmins are more of a sports watch with some smart watch features.

Pixel Watch (and others) are more of a smart watch with some fitness features. Neither is in the same ballpark of each other, in my opinion. It just depends on what you want the watch to do.

dextroz • 3mo ago

Pixel Watch 4 is the only thing that comes close to Apple Watch. Garmin watch - if you can live with operational bloatware (e.g., Garmin Pay, vendor lock-in, etc.) and a pseudo smartwatch, but a 10-day battery life, then go for the Garmin.

forbearance • 3mo ago

Skip to main content+ Create

When I was looking for a replacement, I looked at Garmin Fenix 8 (and also older versions that are cheaper), but it's over $1K. After some research, I ended up getting Amazfit T-Rex 3. This watch is at a budget price with some premium level features. No, it is not on par with Garmin Fenix 8, but can't complain at its price range of $250 - $280. I got it on Prime day for $200. This watch has served me well on an international trip including mountain hikes. I actually have the stats from that hike stored on the companion phone app.

Check fitness watches from brands other than the big ones (Apple, Pixel, Garmin, etc.). You may find some really good deals with the features you want.

xteku • 3mo ago

What specifically don't you like about the Pixel watch? Just curious, as it seems to me like almost 1:1 apple watch, just for android (and circular)

fucemi • 3mo ago

I own and recommend OnePlus Watch 3.

I dislike this Pixel toy watch from google and consider many others as a waste of money, when looking at how long battery lasts.

As I don't need an included sim (what would be of course a big drainage), I am a happy owner for 2 months now. I am just sad that I didn't buy it earlier as I still wanted to be able to use my watch with android and ios (oneplus is android only).

And I don't see the point of paying a lot more for a Garmin. I am happy with the health and sport modes the oneplus offers. Bought it for 160 Eur new btw.

wheelsemac • 3mo ago

Samsung is your best bet if you want to use it across multiple platforms and they tend to release those apps first. I've never brought a pixel watch even though I have the 9

WhitYourQuining • 3mo ago

If you golf and want to use your watch to keep score, don't go Garmin. They have ignored a user request for Garmin Golf to upload scores to your GHIN account for years with no plan to include it in the roadmap.

<https://forums.garmin.com/apps-software/mobile-apps-web/f/garmin-golf-ios/375266/posting-scores-and-stats-to-ghin>

Skip to main content

Create

Always_Delulu • 3mo ago

Don't get a Galaxy Watch. Some health features won't work and the weather app won't auto refresh with a non galaxy phone.

Garmin or OnePlus are your best bets if you don't want a pixel watch.

puppyawn • 3mo ago

if you can clarify, why don't you like the PW? I'm on the PW4 and it's pretty darn good. Anyway, just curious.

No-Bodybuilder8228 • 3mo ago

Honestly the pixel watch. Works best with the phone and the new one is very smooth

Rbennie24 • 3mo ago

I have a Vivoactive 5 and absolutely love it. With screen on all the time I get 4-5 days battery life (10-11 with it off), all the workout tracking I could want and a good watch for notifications. Can't recommend it enough.

bozoconnors • 3mo ago

Garmin Fenix series. ~15 days of battery life really sold me. All the notifications you need (even dismiss / snooze phone alarms). Accurate health metrics galore. My favorite / most used feature... the flashlight. Had no clue I'd use it as much as I do. Night vision saving red light mode as well. They're pricey, but with good reason. Built like a tank. Believe the latest even do calls / voice. Also had a slight issue with a well out of warranty model a couple of years ago (through no fault of the watch itself - long story) - held my breath & contacted Garmin customer service... unbelievable response. Was assigned a single, super friendly, intelligent, U.S. based customer service agent that solved my issue beyond satisfaction. Highly recommend and looking forward to my next! (which, will likely... sadly be many years due to the badassness of these watches lol)

psalm_69 • 3mo ago

Oh man, I dunno.. personally love my pixel watch. Great battery life, fully customizable notifications, Gemini built in, great health metrics etc. The largest size is plenty big imo. Can't say enough good things about it.

Create

YouBugged • 3mo ago

Pixel 10 Pro

What about the pixel watch don't you like? Just out of curiosity of course haha

Winter-Alternative-3 • 3mo ago

I have a new Pixel 10 Pro and I absolutely love it as well, have no desire to change phones now

hopjockins • 3mo ago

I like amazfit. If all your watch does is pass along notifications and tell you the time, the battery on many of their watches is like 2 weeks. Not sure if the style or design is up to your taste.

Still_Maintenance288 • 3mo ago

Try Amazfit watches they are good

LSDand2Es • 3mo ago

The OnePlus watch 3 is pretty solid, lasts for days

Open-Tumbleweed8 • 3mo ago

Polar is the performance tracker. Seamless w pixel

HGHDFW • 3mo ago

Amazfit trex 3 pro

nlmbNeva • 2mo ago