New update feels great

New update feels great.

Everything feels smoother.

Typing, loading screens, loading apps, switching between apps

Most notable for me is that the unlocking fingerprint process is now less laggy and error prone Really happy with this, finally feels like what I expected my pixel 9 pro XL to really feel like.

Pixel 10 Pro

This may be why: <https://www.androidauthority.com/android-16-qpr2-features-3621204/>

A more efficient garbage collection algorithm: The Android Runtime (ART) brings a new "Generational Concurrent Mark-Compact (CMC) Garbage Collector" that Google says "focuses collection efforts on newly allocated objects, which are more likely to be garbage." The company says to "expect reduced CPU usage from garbage collection, a smoother user experience with less jank, and improved battery efficiency."

Completely agree and is the same on my P10PF. 🙌

Also loving how much smoother and fluid the PiP video window is to use and activate.

Spare_Afternoon_2786 • 2mo ago

Yeah, even when you're gaming, the PiP mode is so smooth.

Forward_Data_9511 • 2mo ago

Nice 🙌 🙌

whispy_snippet • 2mo ago

Agree. It's a really nice update. It's just added that final level of polish for the 10 Pro as well. All subtle, little things but they add up.

Spare_Afternoon_2786 • 2mo ago

So underrated. Those small details makes an amazing overall UI experience.

That said I really like the new update for the new features like lock screen widgets, forced app icon theme and app icon shapes!

Epic! I'm heading back to Pixel after a stint with the Honor V5, very much looking forward to a smart phone again. I miss my Pixel 9 Pro

Do someone know when the update will be available in Europe>

Njinsa22 • 2mo ago

Updated yesterday, from Denmark.

Do you have problems with connecting to a car? I have a Xiaomi atm and it doesn't connect automatically. I read that maybe Google is also worse for Europe

I installed yesterday on my Pixel 8a. Battery life is still crap, if not worse. Idling overnight will drop battery from 80% to 65% clear cache and storage from Google app delete hey Google voice models retrain clear cache and storage from device connectivity services.

reboot.

I have no idea why this works, but this made a DRAMATIC change in my battery and it doesn't involve limiting the use of the phone like the other insane "tweaks" that involve disabling smooth display and 5G and etc

Are there any downsides to deleting storage form Google app?

P7(SO) + P3(Me) <- P1 <- N4 <- N3

That's just crazy. My wife's P7 loses about 2-3% overnight. I'd recommend you leave your phone on airplane mode (with wifi calling on) for a night and see if it's still the same. If not, you might have found the issue.

Typical_Beyond_5774 • 2mo ago

Battery life isn't great under any circumstances, for sure, but I sometimes wonder whether people are aware of the estimated 20% overhead of the Facebook app, specifically, nevermind other social apps that are online continuously. Install Facebook Lite. Flip to shh at night. Etc..

for me on the 8 pro, thing i most noticed was the media control behaving far more reliably. i used to not even be able to swipe between 2 medias without it getting stuck for some reason Agree feels a lot better. I had an annoying media player bug app that was resolved with the update. Also, the forced color theming and expanded dark mode are nice touches.

Agreed! I swear these phones launch kind of jank every year and every Dec/Jan update makes a huge improvement and brings them up to where they should've launched. Yet every year I never learn

I don't know what changed but everything, including themes inside the apps feel much much better. I had my mind set on buying a Vivo X300 pro mainly because of the camera. But this update somehow still keeps me holding back.

The last time I wanted to buy a X200 Ultra, we got the Material expressive 3 update and I stayed back!

Does anyone know how to get the flashlight brightness slider? I thought that was included in this update but I still see no way of doing it without a 3rd party app

The new update did something?

I installed it but noticed absolutely no difference at all in anything to do with the phone.

iamazondeliver OP • 2mo ago

More about quality from what I can tell. Haptics reduced a bit, everything else feels smoother

SgtSilock • 2mo ago

Like others have said I'm almost certain this is a placebo.

It's a big update so undoubtedly people's minds are going to go straight to performance.

briang416 • 2mo ago

That kind of patch will never be permanent unless you root the phone.

drmmjones • 2mo ago

I am on my third Pixel 9 and I refuse to update from Android 14, because the last two times I did (on the previous phones) it immediately completely screwed up my Bluetooth (among other things), which I need for my hearing devices. In each case, Google support escalated my case then gave up and just gave me a replacement phone, only to have exactly the same things happen when I upgraded to Android 15 or 16 again. So now I'm stuck on Android 14, and obviously they are never going to help me understand when it's safe to upgrade again, because they can't even figure out what their problem is

This December update sounds great, I can't wait to receive it on both my Pixel 7 Pro and Pixel 8 Pro.

Skip to main content+ Create

My P9 display is after QPR2 update freezing , very often or rather say regularly . Google suggests this freezing is caused by a 3rd party app which I should remove. All fine , but display freezing happens also when using devices settings . I am still trying to locate the trouble causing 3rd party app. Weird situation. I don't want perform factory reset and lose all. But it seems I'll have to do it sooner or later.

pantlessjim • 2mo ago

Touch becomes completely unresponsive for me. I've had to hold the power button to restart the phone at least six times in under 24 hours.

Fingerprint and face unlock work, but no touch, so I can't get into the phone.

DaarKrakan • 2mo ago

This update went very smoothly on the Pixel 8 Pro after a long time, and the battery is also performing well with the latest update. I'm using the pixel for an unofficial country. We had not previously supported VOLTE. They now provide support as well. This is the best update I have received so far.

Same! Only thing...my Amazon app will hang while opening. Gotta close the app from recents and then it pops open right away when I click it again. Anyone else?

New_Grocery_4742 • 2mo ago

You think the GPS is now better, I had really bad GPS or Compass in apps like Komoot. Never had such problems with my Nothing Phone 1. Its really the only thing that sucks....

iamazondeliver OP • 2mo ago

Yeah I think it's better now for me.

Sometimes gps would be glitchy while I'm going somewhere. Now I feel I only need to do it once

childroid • 2mo ago

Pixel 5

Definitely feels smoother for my P10PXL as well, but I am having this issue where, once in a while, my screen goes black for half a second and then pops back on like nothing happened. Tried restarting, to no avail. I imagine that'll get patched soon, nbd.
