Pixel 10 Pro XL on Android 16, adding shortcuts to home screen via any method doesn't work at first but after manually for stopping pixel launcher, the added shortcuts over whatever period of time I added them finally show up - why?

Honestly, this is my first pixel phone and I was already skeptical but I don't understand why this is happening? I mean I'm literally using the default launcher and literal "stock Android" - you would think that this would flawlessly work as it's a basic function.

The Pixel experience has been incredibly buggy since switching from Samsung. It's surprising that a manufacturer with such a barebones skin would release it with so many issues.

Same here! This is literally my first pixel/nexus/stock Android device and I'm coming from ColorOS/OxygenOS and OneUI/Samsung Experience and I'm blown away that Google could be so careless to have their stock OS be so buggy/unoptimized???

I have had that issue and it's very annoying.

Ironically this is my first Pixel phone after using primary Samsung/OnePlus flagships since like 2016ish and have literally experienced more bugs/quirks in my first 2 months of usage than I have with literally any other Android phone.....

I've been opted in on the beta program probably since mid-December but I noticed today that my android version in settings was just plain "16" so I don't know if my device has been having these weird bugs because I'm in the beta program or just because my phone says I'm in the beta program but it's not actually running beta versions??

Either way I opted out, there's no chance in hell I'm doing a complete factory reset or anything like that. So I'll wait till the next stable Android update I guess

You can tell if you're on a beta version when you reboot, you get a popup at startup that tells you.

I'm using the 10 pro XL and I've never had any of those issues. Sorry for your experience

Maybe it's a third party app issue.... There's really no good way to tell unless I use safe mode but with safe mode. There's no internet correct? And I don't really know of any apps that our system apps that can add icons to home screen???

Either way Even if that was the case and it worked in safe mode, it wouldn't give me the answer to what app is causing this issue.....

How many third party apps you have installed?
