ago. Suddenly, my Pixel has started draining its battery VERY quickly, which has not been a problem for me in the past. My phone no longer makes it through a 7 hour school day, while it used to make it to the end with 40-50% left. Now, just from doing something like listening to Spotify with bluetooth earbuds and using Facebook at the same time, my battery will drop from ~40% to 0% in about 10 seconds, not exaggerating. My phone is also more laggy than normal, which becomes glaringly obvious whenever I try to use the camera app when it's below like 50%. Admittedly, my school does not have very good phone service, but like I said before, this has not been a problem in the past. I've already tried to update my device and clear some of my storage, but neither option has seemed to have an effect. Why is this happening? And are there any fixes to this issue, or is this just a sign of my phone's age?

UPDATE: my battery was just disgustingly swollen!! I even noticed that my phone case kept popping up, but I just figured that my case warped in the sun or something. in hindsight, it was a very easy fix 🤔

Inevitable-Jicama382 • 3mo ago

I'm in the same boat. I bought my Pixel 7 in Summer 2023, and it was perfectly fine up until recently. Then out of nowhere, the battery life tanked. It started dropping insanely fast and would sometimes go from 40% to dead within seconds. Eventually, I took it to a repair shop and found out the battery health had completely deteriorated. After getting the battery replaced, the phone has been back to normal

Sam's issues with a pixel 8 pro

SydTheSquid_08 • 3mo ago

Yeahh, I may just have to replace the battery. But I'm glad that I'm not alone with this problem!

framingXjake • 3mo ago

I'm having similar issues with a P9P. Phone was locked last night at midnight with a full battery. No SIM, no Wifi, no AOD, data/wifi/Bluetooth all disabled, very limited background activity. At 6am, it had 86% battery left.

What on earth is the phone doing to lose 14% in 6 hours with zero SOT, when absolutely nothing should be happening, especially without having any internet connection?

dime5150 • 3mo ago

Pixel 9

Is your CPU percentage high? Mine is always above 60% now and battery drops all the time.

Anyone notice any changes in battery life after the November update? I rolled back to the August update since the September and October ones vaporized my battery life, and I do see battery life listed as improved in the latest update. Wondering if I can finally get up to the latest version and have my phone last past 5pm.

framingXjake • 3mo ago

It has helped a lot. Dropping about 1% every 10 minutes of SOT. Roughly 16.5 hours of battery life if you extrapolate. Assuming that battery drain is linear, though, which it is not. I would guesstimate that my battery life is probably somewhere around 14h of SOT now. Pixel 9 Pro btw.

SpotFun4019 • 3mo ago

My Pixel 8 pro latest update November very good in battery life..., maybe google have fix battery issues

ryanc99 • 3mo ago

Noticed my pixel 10 is much better as others have stated.

notverycreative1 • 3mo ago

Adding my voice in here, def seems better than before. Maybe not as good as the August update but still good enough.

Atcha432 • 3mo ago

My battery life is back to normal. Its good again!

maxamillion17 • 3mo ago

How do you roll back to august?

notverycreative1 • 3mo ago

Flash the August factory image. Totally wipes your phone so you gotta be sure it's worth it.

retronican • 2mo ago

I'm jealous of the people saying their battery life is back to normal. It's still just as bad for me. It got worse the day of the September 2025 update and has never been the same even after this November

Skip to main content+ Createnotverycreative1 • 2mo ago

It seems to kind of come and go for me. One day it's great, the next it's cooked by 6pm. Not sure what's going on.

DoctorPigHead • 3mo ago

My 2 year old 6a suddenly turned off yesterday and there was no issue turning it back on. I didn't use it for like 3 hours and in those 3 hours the battery went down from 90 to 30 percent. I also feel like the phone is warmer than usual (although right now it's at 37°C which isn't bad I guess).

Battery consumption in that time was only the system software. Also my phone isn't eligible for the free battery replacement/compensation.

Do you think the battery is dying on me? Can factory reset help with this?

dime5150 • 3mo ago

Pixel 9

Anyone else having really bad battery performance since November pixel drop? Can't get a day anymore. Horrible. My 9 just past a year and it's the worst batter life of any phone I've ever had.

BullOak • 3mo ago

Trade in values seem seem somewhat elevated now. $100 for a cracked screen P6P and $300 off a 10 pro xl makes me think I'll bite. Just wondering if Best buy will do better on BF.

Natural_Ability_4947 • 3mo ago

Bought a pixel 7 in June 2023 and probably the best phone I've ever had...until yesterday when it took a bit of a bump and I have a white line on the left side taking up maybe 10% of screen.

Took it to repair guy and he quoted me 200 and said it better to just get a new phone....so pixel 9 pro or 10?

Skip to main contentCreatezzorga • 3mo ago

Does anyone else friggin hate the GUI update they forced on us? This corpo memphis lite bubbly crap is awful, and literally no one asked for it.

DecemberBest • 3mo ago

I bought Pixel 10 Pro XL at $899 and trading in pixel 6 for $140. Received the phone and trade-in kit didn't do anything yet still New in box. Today I got the BF sale with additional $200 code, so now it's $699. I started return process and half way through, it let me choose price match instead of return, so I proceeded it but ended up with a case number pending approval. Or should I just go through the return process and at the same time order another one with BF promo price? If the approval time takes too long I rather order new one now and return the previous one once it arrives. But I'm worried that the price match will get approved after I did that. How long should I wait for the price match decision?

PS. All of these are done directly on Google Store website.

Cornloaf • 3mo ago

Pixel 10 Pro XL here. October update really seemed to help my battery. Just did the update this morning with battery at 100%. Answered two emails and replied to two texts. Read three news articles in Chrome. Phone sat on my kitchen table while I prepped breakfast and school lunches. Within an hour I was down to 88%. Battery settings claim my phone will last to 545pm (was 100% at 8am). Last night I made it to 8-9pm before basic battery saver kicked in.

It's almost like there is a witch hiding in my phone stealing all my juice...

reddit-poweruser • 3mo ago

Chrome is clocking in at using 53% of my battery with 1hr 44 min screen time and 15 min background. Seems like a lot of apps are just eating my battery right now. 7% from instagram with 18 min screen time and 28 min background, even though I have Allow background usage disabled for IG and a few other apps that are clocking background time.

Should I buy Pixel 9a or 10? Is the higher price worth paying? I was using iPhone 15 but want to switch, need better battery life and good performance

Remote-Ostrich-1785 • 3mo ago

Hey!

I am looking to buy the Pixel 9 as my go to future-proof phone in a budget, I come from a Honor 90 Lite with 256gb and right now in my country (spain) the only option to buy for a reduced price is the 128gb version.

I tend to take lots of photos (videos from time to time) but I really use almost no apps (whatsapp, instagram, banking app, not that much more).

Soo should I go for a 450 euro pixel 9 128gb or should I wait if there is some 256gb versions about to come out for christmas or such?

wspusa2 • 3mo ago

pixel 9a $399 (20% off) vs pixel 9 $499 (38% off). which is the better deal?

at only 100 dollar difference, i'm tempted for the 9 with the bigger price reduction, but at same time, i heard there's not too much difference between the two phone and prefer spending less if i can.

can someone go into the finer details of which would be the better pick and why? i dont know every single feature difference between the two

jaz9999 • 3mo ago

Pixel 10 Pro worth £579 for the 128gb or £679 for the 256gb?

Wasn't bothered about the 10 on release as I'm not assed about all of the AI fluff but it's starting to feel like time to replace my Pixel 6. I looked into the 9 Pro too but it's not much cheaper

Maxamii_ • 3mo ago

The Google store has the 128GB tablet on sale at $150 off but it doesn't look like the 256GB model is on sale at all? Not to mention the dock is not discounted (and also not in stock). Best Buy has the 256GB tablet on sale at $190 off. Am I missing something? Why would it not be on sale from Google?

TheSonic311 • 3mo ago

Are there still widespread issues? I just can't fathom being without a phone because it's the only way I can log in to my two-factor at work come on etc.

I only ask because somehow the phone is now telling me the update will install sometime after 2:00 a.m. today... And there doesn't appear to be a way to stop it.

- ThePrinceofBirds • 3mo ago

That's true. Used to be so annoying if you put off updating while rooted for about 3 months and wake up one day to the PTA forceful long updating. I've been on Oct with P9P with no issues.
- TheSonic311 • 3mo ago

Yeah I've been on it for 3 days and it seems to be fine now.

Other than needing to turn off that battery health garbage. My phone was dying halfway through the day.

Ended up claiming warranty on my P8. The android 16 Update caused massive battery issues and then the green screen problem surfaced. The local service agent could not fix as they didn't have the parts. Google supplied a replacement.

Advertising-Budget • 3mo ago

the update caused green screen for you? did they replace it with another P8 but only because you had prior warranty plan?

KindlyCucumber1122 • 3mo ago

Yes Google replaced the phone, green screen and battery problems occurred after the update. There is an extended warranty on some P8s with the green screen issue (up to 3 years). Look up

Pixel 7

Are there any recommendations for a dirty cheap and thin case with internal lining for a P10? I'm in the UK if it matters.

I'm planning on using the P10 only for a year because next year's SOC should be less outdated if the reports are correct. I mostly want to make sure the phone isn't scratched so that I can trade it in at max value, and I don't really drop my phone. I also want to make sure the case itself won't lead to scratches, which I've had happen to a phone in the past. It's weird I don't see many cases made from soft materials anymore.

-Pizza-Planet- • 3mo ago

The official case is sometimes cheap on Amazon.. Agree with you on the lining.. would help. Stupid shiny sides...

TheCousinOfShrek • 3mo ago

Hi! I'm looking to buy a new phone that is not very expensive as I tend to throw them around often, and I'm between the Pixel 7 Pro or the 8, is there much of a difference? I've seen the 7 Pro has better specs in general but I don't know if maybe the newer normal one is worth it more than the other. Also, is there a big difference between the two and the Pixel 8 Pro? If there is, I might also choose that as an option.

Olue • 3mo ago

I bought a refurb P6a in February for $150. Now I'm going through the battery charge cycle issue (just hit 375 cycles).

Options are:

- Free battery replacement
- $100 cash
- $150 credit in the Google store

Any thoughts on the best option here?

I could get a brand new P6a for $100 using the credit. Or I could get a $20 battery kit with the $100 cash.

iamahumanstopit • 3mo ago

If you're in US and on FI you can get the 9a for cheaper than a new 6a.

Skip to main content+ Create Olue • 3mo ago

I'm not currently, but for that deal I could probably switch. Does this offer show up in the Store if you are a subscriber, or was it sent via email? Curious if I'd be eligible if I switched in.

 iamahumanstopit • 3mo ago

It shows in store if you are logged in with your fi subscriber google account.

Hi, I have an eligible Pixel 6a under the battery performance program. I followed the link and filled in my details and choose cash payment. But after submitting got a message that google support team will get back in 3 weeks. Its past that time and have not received resolution. Can someone please guide on what am I missing and how to receive the cash payment? Also I created a payoneer account. Thanks

Bought a 10PXL in the Black Friday sales, upgrading from a 2XL that's still going strong, but can't keep up (given half my banking apps no longer work).

Goddamn, what a change. Things a beauty and a beast at the same time. Loving this.

Replaced battery on Pixel 6a, but what glue do I use to re-attach screen?

As the title says. Google Pixel 6a is affected by the battery issue, so I replaced the battery myself. The screen was already detached by itself and was held together by the case. I didn't know, and it was like that for who knows how long.

Anyhow, made the battery replacement easier except getting the screen frame off to get to the battery. Anyhow, now that everything is back together, and the screen is back to being held by the case, I'd like to get it sealed up again.

What type of glue or option is there to properly attached the screen to the phone again?

Edit: Seems like this is the one I need, but $7 S&H? I'll just let the case keep it in place, unless there's any concern?

Hi everyone,

Is battery getting weaker after a week normal?

A week ago I bought a new P9a. I might be just unaware of how batteries work as it's my first not second-hand phone since 2018. I'm currently after 5 charging cycles, got my adaptive charging turned on but try to stay between 20% to 80%. The highest battery runtime estimation the system gave me once was like a day and 5h or a day and 10h. I was pleasantly surprised. Yesterday I got some updates, including November Drop, September Drop and the one with the new UI (could be one of those mentioned, can't remember now). Now my estimates are around 9h. I just forgot to unplug my phone and got it charged to 100%, it shows an estimate of 12h. For my phone usage context: I never have daily screentime above 3h, usually it's 1,5-2h. Mid screen brightness, mobile data on 99% of the time (the internet coverage, speed and price is flawless in Warsaw, so I just don't turn it off), GPS off 99% of the time, BT is turned on sometimes for some time if I forget to turn it off. Is that battery estimate normal? I feel like something's wrong if I had such long time predictions and now it's no more than 12h. Battery life is at 100% of course. Can that be because I'm freshly after an update and the estimates are still recalibrating, or was that upgrade a battery nerf, like the one P6a got in summer?

BlackberryLumpy8732 • 2mo ago

The September drop fucked up a lot of people's battery life. We're still waiting for solutions

kreteciek • 2mo ago

Turned out it's just a UI bug of the upper settings panel (or whatever it's called). The estimate is correct irl and in the Settings. It cuts the "1 day" part in the upper menu, though.

Ptothrow • 2mo ago

I have a 7pro it's fine but I have the opportunity to get a 10 pro for "free". I was going to wait for the 11 but tempted to jump on it because of the decreased value next year on a 7 trade in.

I never use my phone for gaming it's all podcast, texting, navigation, and photos (sort of)

Mekthakkit • 2mo ago

How do I combine the 6a battery credit with the black friday sale at FI? My household has three 6a's. My personal one seems to have not qualified for the battery credit, but my family members just informed me that they both got notifications. I'd seen info on how to combine offers and ignored it because I thought it wasn't applicable. Does anyone know the procedure? I've failed to turn up the old post.

Create

Today I applied for the google store financing in order to buy a new pixel, got accepted, the order was confirmed, but then cancelled a few minutes later. Apparently google needs me to verify my information by sending them a picture of my ID and.... the credit card that I JUST APPLIED FOR VIA THE GOOGLE STORE IN ORDER TO GET THE PHONE. The bank that handles the credit line (Synchrony) says a "welcome package" arrives within 7-10 days. I'm in the process of dealing with customer support through google, but I won't get a response until another 24-48 hours. The sole reason I was getting a pixel now is because of the Black Friday deals and the rebate for switching to googleFi, but now I'm wondering if my issue will even be resolved before the sales end.

I'm curious if anyone has dealt with such issues when financing their pixel through the google store.

Nimitability • 3mo ago

Just got a Black Friday sneak peek email (subject line "Sneak a peek at Black Friday deals starting 11/20/25"). I have a Pixel 8 Pro, and interested in getting a Pixel 10 Pro. Looks like BF deal will be $300 off, so $699.

I'm already a Google Fi user, and looks like I can get a bigger discount through that. Footnote with symbol "$$" on this page says I can get $500 off purchase (spread out over 24 months) with my current Unlimited Premium Fi plan. "Offer cannot be combined with other offers," but I assume I can still trade in a phone either way.

Since I'm planning to stick with Fi, any reason not to choose the $500 over time discount vs. the $300 BF one?

AgentDonut • 3mo ago

Does the Pixel 10 xl pro line have the same wifi/bluetooth disabling issue the p8pro have? Thinking of trading this hunk of junk in during the black friday sale.

ThanosDi • 2mo ago

I'm about to get a p10pro in Europe and as far as I understand we have a lot less AI features. Trying to see this optimistically does this mean less battery drain as these AI features are disabled?

Anyone managed to compare this?
