

Skip to main contentr/GooglePixel ×

Search in r/GooglePixel

Create

r/GooglePixel • 6mo ago

GooglePixelMods

The Mod Team

"Which Pixel should I buy?" Megathread August 2025

Welcome to the new megathread for all of your purchasing decisions. If you need help deciding on which Pixel you should get, this is the best place to ask. All posts outside of this megathread will be removed as per Rule 9.

This post will be replaced on the 1st of each month at 10:00 UTC. If the month is incorrect, search for the latest one here.

To return to the Superthread, click here.

Archived post. New comments cannot be posted and votes cannot be cast.

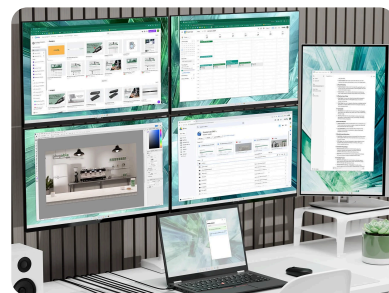

72

158

Share

PlugableOfficial • Promoted

You can run five 4K displays from one USB-C port with the most impressive laptop dock I've ever seen

windowscentral.comSort by: New (Default) ▾

Search Comments

livinc0rpse • 5mo agonishantkd_ • 6mo ago

Should I upgrade to the Pixel 10 or go with the Pixel 8 Pro? Coming from a 5-year-old Xiaomi Mi 11X.

The last Google phone I used was the Motorola Nexus 6. Fast forward a few years and 2–3 phone changes later, I purchased the Xiaomi Mi 11X in early 2021. Before that, I used to change phones frequently for no real reason even when performance was still solid.

It was around that time that I decided I wouldn't switch phones so often and would try to use each one for at least five years, if not more. The Mi 11X came with Android 11 and eventually received Android 13. After that, I switched to a custom ROM (PixelOS), which I've been using for a while now and really enjoy. However, I've recently started facing issues with some banking apps.

Skip to main contentCreate

Now, my question is:

Should I go for the Pixel 8 Pro or wait for the Pixel 10?

Pricing:

The 256GB models of both the Pixel 8 Pro and the Pixel 10 are priced the same for me, thanks to a bank discount and a ₹15,000 discount on Google Play (which can only be applied to the non-Pro Pixel 10).

Final Price: ₹58,000 (approx. $662)

Camera:

The Pixel 8 Pro offers a 48MP ultrawide and a 48MP telephoto camera, compared to the Pixel 10's 13MP ultrawide and 10.8MP front camera. On paper, that's clearly a downgrade. However, many say megapixels don't matter much unless you're printing photos at extremely large sizes.

That said, sensor size on the Pixel 10 has also been reduced. Should I wait for reviews to see if the new ISP & DSP bring meaningful improvements, or just choose the 8 Pro now for its superior camera setup?

Performance:

Based on leaks and Geekbench scores, the Tensor G5 in the Pixel 10 appears better. But even if it's similar to the G4, it wouldn't be a big deal for me. I'm coming from a 5-year-old phone with a sub-1-million score, and I don't game or do any performance-heavy tasks.

Software:

While the Pixel 8 Pro is promised seven years of OS updates, it launched with Android 14. The Pixel 10 ships with Android 16. Given my plan to use phones for as long as possible, the Pixel 10 could potentially outlast the 8 Pro by two years in terms of software support.

Display:

I'm fine with both 6.3" and 6.7" screen sizes. What I'd like to know is: How important is LTPO? Will it make a noticeable difference in real-life usage?

Conclusion:

I'd love help from this sub and the GooglePixel community to make a final choice.

- Which one would you recommend and why?
- Are there other factors I should consider?
- Or are there better alternatives in this price range?

Bitemyrhyme • 6mo ago

XL, 3XL, 7p, 10pXL

Skip to main content

Create

are unresponsive and now I really feel the need to upgrade. I think my main concern is that it forces me to use Gemini and I won't have the option anymore for the Google Assistant. It would drive me mad to be stuck with Gemini and it can't even do the basic things I ask the assistant for normally. I'm just an everyday phone user, don't really play games, so some of the high tech stuff I don't care a lot about. I guess I'm curious if you were in my position would you get the 9 or go with the 10?

PoorAxelrod • 6mo ago • Edited 6mo ago

Pixel 6 Pro, 7 Pro, 8 Pro + Pixel Watch 1 & 2

Pixel 8 Pro vs Pixel 10 Pro

I'm currently on a Pixel 8 Pro and debating whether it's worth jumping to the Pixel 10 Pro. I've already ruled out the XL version since I don't want a phone that large, but here's what's on my mind:

Pixel 8 Pro battery: ~5050 mAh

Pixel 10 Pro battery: ~4870 mAh

Pixel 10 Pro XL battery: ~5200 mAh (but size is a dealbreaker for me)

Edit: for some context, I have a physical disability that impacts my dexterity a little and I'd rather have a phone that's smaller and easier to handle

On paper, the regular 10 Pro actually has less battery capacity than my 8 Pro, which makes me hesitate. Google is claiming improved efficiency with the new Tensor G5 chip and software optimisations, but I'm not sure if that realistically offsets the smaller battery.

Since the phone just launched, I know there won't be much real-world usage data yet. But based on the specs, Google's claims, and what usually happens with new Tensor chips, do you think upgrading makes sense for someone like me who values battery life and usability above all else?

Or would it be smarter to hold onto my 8 Pro and wait for the next cycle?

haronic • 6mo ago

I doubt that 200 mAh is going to be a big difference, as is end of day how many % of battery you're at end of the day? Im sure P10P battery life would be good, if not better.

Other than that, P8P is still a great phone, that can last many years, and the few AI features in P10 seemsnit worth the cost to jump imo

Rollenoremo • 6mo ago

Greerings folks,

For those of you who upgraded to the Pixel 10 XL (especially if you came from a Pixel 6/7 pro or older model), which storage option did you go with 256 GB, 512 GB, or 1 TB?

I'm debating between them and wondering how you made your decision. Do you feel like the extra space is actually worth it in day to day use, or is 256 GB still plenty for most people?

Skip to main contentCreateClaudioHplus • 6mo ago

Hi!

I currently use an iPhone SE2, but I'm seriously thinking about switching to the Pixel 10 instead of upgrading to the iPhone 17. The issue is that I'm heavily into the Apple ecosystem (MacBook Air M1, iPad 9, AirPods, and most importantly an Apple Watch 9).

I've done the math, and with Google Store promos I could get a Pixel 10 and a Pixel Watch for slightly less than just an iPhone 17 (supposed price), by trading in my SE2 and Watch.

I really like Apple products. My SE2 still runs great after 5 years (battery aside), and my MacBook and iPad are irreplaceable, I wouldn't go back to Windows, and I haven't found an Android tablet that matches the iPad for the same price I originally paid for the iPad 9.

The problem is: I prefer Google apps and third party apps anyway. I always end up back on them, while Apple's own apps feel limiting. iCloud feels clunky compared to Google Drive. All my friends use Google Photos, so I ended up syncing Apple Photos to Google Photos anyway.

Main reason I'm tempted to switch: Apple feels kind of stuck. I was hoping Apple Intelligence would be exciting, but it feels behind compared to Google Gemini, which is deeply integrated into Pixel phones and I really really like it. Getting another iPhone just feels like the same experience I already have, slightly shinier, with Liquid Glass I don't even like that much.

My doubts:

- Will Tensor G5 hold up 4–5 years the way my A13 Bionic has?
- Apple gives new features to older devices; will Google really do that for Pixels, or will features be locked to new models despite 7 years of updates? I've heard that new feature comes but with few months of delay.
- Pixel Watch, I'm not sure it can really match my Apple Watch, which I love.

So yeah, I know I could just keep using Google and third party apps on my Apple devices (and I do). But after 5 years, I want something fresh, just not if it ends up being a worse overall experience.

Thank you very much!

bun_maska • 6mo agoFoggyFoggyFoggy • 6mo ago

Google Pixel 10 Pro vs. Google Pixel 9 (not Pro).

I was about to upgrade to 9 but the Verizon rep offered the 10 Pro for less. Is there a catch? Did I get bamboozled? There's always a catch, right?

Skip to main contentCreateJohnnyCrac • 6mo ago

Pixel 9a or Pixel 10??

My partner needs to upgrade her Pixel 6a. With some store vouchers and the current offers she could get the Pixel 9a for €267 or the Pixel 10 for €416. Is the pixel 10 worth the extra €150?

She is not a heavy user, mostly social media and pictures.

yeastysourpuss • 6mo ago

I ditched my Samsung S22+ because it would not autofocus well. Got a 9a which is sweet, but I miss good telephoto zoom and faster charging. I will upgrade to the 10 or 10 pro once they allow 9a trade ins

thiccccccccb0i • 6mo ago

Should i wait for the 10 series or just get the 9 pro?

I have an s23 that im considering upgrading. Ive had samsung for years now and want to try something different this time around.

I was initially planning to upgrade to the P9 pro but after the announcement the P10 seems to basically have the same features for less money, im not too knowledgeable about phones so some guidance would be helpful

MarcosTrujillo • 6mo ago

Forget it, the camera bump is still there, and that's an absolute dealbreaker for me. I've been a lifelong Pixel fan since it first came out, but I've been pushed into using a Samsung. This camera bump has been a horrible design decision.

Azrian_ • 6mo ago

Good morning,

I am an avid user of anything Google. I am thinking of finally cutting from Xfinity Mobile and going to GoogleFi.

Some questions I have about GF. I do not travel out of the country, if ever. Haven't since 2019. I don't need YouTube Premium, I don't need the extra storage space.. and I don't need texting to other countries...etc.

I am also only one person. So what plan would be a better bang for my buck? I was looking at the 30$/month plan. But then I was looking at the 50$/month plan with hotspot tethering, but honestly never when I am on the go.

Skip to main content+ Create

Also, I am looking to upgrade my phone with GoogleFi, if I do switch. Currently I have a GPixel 8pro. My sibling has that moto flip phone that looks dope! However, I would honestly love to stick with Google - but I'm not too sure how I like the design of the Google Fold.

Some questions I have about switching to a new phone.. does the fold break easily? Are there proper cases for the fold? In regards to switching phones all together, I am wondering how the Samsung phones are now. I have never had a Samsung, but the flip phones they have look interesting. Moto also looks good.

TLDR:

Which GFi plan should I pick? Is it worth getting the GPixel 10fold, or switching to a new phone maker? Should I just get a GPixel 10pro?

Thanks everyone!

Safe_Lettuce_1789 • 1mo ago

I think samsung fold/ flip are much cool check out samsung flip it's dope

MapForward6096 • 6mo ago

For people who've traded in their pixel 6a, what condition was it in? When I upgraded from the 4a to 6a, I tried to trade it in and Google rejected it even though it wasn't in that poor condition (I later sold it to CEX, a second-hand shop here in the UK, for £120). My current 6a seems fine but has some chips around the edges.

PointFlash • 6mo ago

Pixel 8a Pixel 9a

Just for fun, a photo showing a Pixel 6a, 8a, and 9a lined up next to each other if anyone in the "which Pixel?" mode wondered how they compare as to size.

<https://imgur.com/cG04Xex>

For years now I've bought these phones unlocked and used them for 2-3 years. A few years ago (long story not worth telling) I ended up with an extra phone. I had a new 6a and a refurb 4a as the spare. I traded in the 4a on a new 8a (so had 8a as main phone and 6a as the spare). Now I've traded in the 6a on the 9a and the 8a is the spare.

I've used the "spare" phone mainly for (a) downloading and playing my extensive Audible audiobook library and (b) occasionally as a PAYG phone when traveling, to supplement my regular mobile phone. My 8a "spare" is a lot fresher than any of my prior "spare" phones. I'm toying with the idea of selling it since the new 9a is 256GB and has plenty of room for the audiobooks. The 6a is now on its way back to Google.

Skip to main contentCreate

And I'm concerned it can get scratched easier, I can't bring myself to spend $800 for a phone, even if it's through a special, I figure that either phone is better than my 5, which I'm still pretty happy with!

BUT, My biggest problem in my house is that I don't get that grade of reception. When I'm using the phone or Wi-Fi, I only get two to three bars and things are slow to load. With regard to this, does it make any difference what phone I get? I currently connect up through ATT home internet most of the time but hope to eventually drop it. I would like to try to use the hotspot from the new phone. Thanks!

Panshek • 6mo ago

Hi! I saw that in US the Pixel 9a and Pixel 8 Pro have some discount. The 9a is $400 and the 8 Pro is $600.

Should i go for the 8 Pro since it has better hardware (I think?) or for the 9a because it is near 2 year newer?

I heard that Google offers 7 years of updates on the phone, so that takes 2 years of lifespan from the 8 Pro.

Sewaddle159 • 6mo ago

Should I buy the Pixel 7 or Pixel 8? Of course 7 is cheaper, which is a bonus, but I'd be okay with either one. I've been looking for deals that any cell service companies might have. Does anyone here happen to know the best deal right now when getting a Pixel 7 or 8? Specifically I'm looking for the 256gb memory, which is less commonly discounted it seems

garvkingdom • 6mo ago

Which pixel should i purchase as of this month Pixel 8pro / pixel 9/ pixel 10 ... hell man... I'm confused like trump. Any suggestions buddies 🤔

garvkingdom • 6mo ago

my major requirements are having long lasting battery and phone should able to operate at minus temp

MoldyTexas • 6mo ago

Pixel 10 Pro

I have been on the market for a new phone for quite some time now after my current one started having multi-organ failures. I would consider myself to be an android power user, but without anything that demands the utmost performance (gaming, exporting stuff, etc.). All I care about is an overall great experience with the least amount of jitters and a great camera. As the title suggests, I have narrowed it down to these two phones, but am yet to make a decision.

Skip to main content

Create

the brand again. What has your negative experiences been like?

I have done my due diligence over the months, so I know pretty much what each of these phones have to offer in terms of their features and hardware, (including their insides, as an electronics engg). What I now want to know is which one is going to cause me more of a headache than the other. Apologies if the question seems vague :(

PS. The reason I ask this on a Pixel sub, while risking bias, is because I want this info from people who are passionate enough to be on Reddit and discuss it lol. And to counterbalance the same, I have also asked the same question on the samsung galaxy sub to get their opinion.

Also interesting is that I had written this whole thing as a post which got yeeted because you can't separately ask about buying phones? Incredible job by the mods to limit visibility. Kinda defeats my purpose, but here goes nothing.....

mithraldolls • 6mo ago

Writing from my smashed P8P.

What have the deals been like during new phone release for the previous series? I like the 9P and less excited about the 10P, doesn't seem to be very groundbreaking so might take the savings if they exist on a 9P

Jovasa • 6mo ago

There is currently a sale on 9a for 400€ and 8Pro for 600€, which is should go for?

Deep-Sherbet3855 • 6mo ago

not the fold.

it is cool and all, but I had to side load at least two major applications because they weren't supported on the fold including the turo car rental app and actually the my Verizon app and Verizon doesn't even support the phone! I could not use a Verizon esim. I had to just put my own Verizon salmon to the phone to get it working.

by the way, I ditched to them. I'm far from recommending them again

Rank201AltAccount • 6mo ago

Does the pixel 5 have any problems, such as an update that has/will cripple the battery and cause the phone to explode?

Skip to main contentCreate was crippled yes but that phone was from 2020 release so. Get a 5 if you want with either a good battery or change it. It's fairly simple

Rank201AltAccount • 6mo ago

thanks

Brainiac-1969 • 6mo ago • Edited 6mo ago

The Google Pixel 10 handset will be introduced to the globe on Thursday, 28 August 2025 Consisting of the basic Pixel 10, Pixel 10 Pro & Pixel 10 Pro Fold!

No-Yak-631 • 6mo ago

Just upgraded from 7 Pro to 9 Pro. To be honest haven't seen any great improvement in the camera, apart from better panorama mode. Night sight mode still not great.

Smooth-Repair-8425 • 6mo ago

Any other differences?

No-Yak-631 • 6mo ago

After a few weeks of use, I think my initial comment regarding the camera was misleading. The camera is in fact outstanding and as I said the panorama mode is flawless. Battery is much better too. I certainly don't think I will feel the need to upgrade for a long while to come.

elvenazn • 6mo ago

Pixel 9 Pro

How's your signal and heat?

idreezy • 6mo ago

Really on the fence of getting a 256GB Pixel 9Pro. My Pixel 7's battery life has been really bad for some months now.

Videsdos-6 • 6mo ago

Depends on how much you want to fork over ? 1 of the best midrange or maybe the best midrange phone out there is the Pixel 9a. Or wait what might be the best phone in 2025 is the Pixel 10 Pro XL with

Skip to main content

Create

koolaidicecubes • 6mo ago

I had the panda 2 XL, then went back to Apple. I think I will get the 10 pro fold 🥲

[deleted] • 6mo ago

Just upgraded from the 7PXL to the 9PXL or whatever, no rugrats at all

kyousuke99 • 6mo ago

If you want right now buy 9a if not wait for pixel 10

Roxny3 • 6mo ago

9 pro XL 1 Tb

InspectionSure9587 • 6mo ago

For a usual pixel phone, how many years they usually last? Deciding bet 9 pro and iphone 17 pro

Papilionoidea • 6mo ago

I've still got a pixel 6 that I bought in 2022. Works perfectly

Dantheusfman • 6mo ago

My 6 just bricked this week, pretty sure it overheated; the refurbished 8 I ordered to replace it should be here Sunday.

[deleted] • 6mo ago

I may try the pixel 10

Keavonnn • 6mo ago

If you can, wait for the Pixel 10 series, then decide. Only weeks away now.

Skip to main content+ CreateDiet-Narrow • 6mo ago

How did you get the 9a for under £200 if I may ask? Mine comes down to £206 if I'm lucky (£499 - £70 offer - £150 Battery Program discount - £73 estimated trade-in value). Is there another voucher I am missing?

Brief-Joke-6250 • 6mo ago

Got a 9a and a 9 love them both might the fold when they drop in price a bit

SquaredCircle84 • 6mo ago • Edited 6mo ago

Pixel 10 Pro XL

I have a Pixel 7 Pro that's on its last legs. GPS hasn't worked in months, the power button flakes out on me, and battery seems to be draining quicker than usual. Would it be worth it to look at a Pixel 9 Pro at this time (August 2025), or should I just wait until the 10 series comes out?

EDIT: My main factor in all of this would probably be price. I know either phone will be an improvement over what I currently have. I guess I'm just wondering if I'll be missing out on anything significant by going for a 9 Pro now and not waiting for the 10 series.

saysmoo • 6mo ago

I ordered a Pixel 9 Pro through Verizon in early June. It is still on backorder and nobody at VZ has anything to say except that it should become available again soon! Trying to keep my 6 alive and trade-in worthy for the time being!

kareemagerard • 6mo ago

Pixel 10 Pro XL

I walked into Best Buy two weeks ago and walked out with a P9PF. Get your money back and buy an unlocked device same day

saysmoo • 6mo ago

The deal with the trade in is $1000 off haha I'd only get like $100 back

Flo_150210 • 6mo ago

Never again any pixel. I had a 4a until a few months ago. Software update, barely usable because of battery drain. Updated to a 6a, same issue now! Closest repair shop is 90 miles from me. I got ripped off

Skip to main contentCreateDestinyInDanger • 6mo ago

Why would you upgrade to a 6a? That's still very old.

Markus_or_Alias • 6mo ago

Why did you update to a 6a 4 months ago lmao.

Also if you got "ripped off twice in 6 months" does that mean you had a 4a for 2 months? So your first phone was a pixel 4a in Feb 2025?

Nothing about this adds up

Flo_150210 • 6mo ago

I had a 4a that was made unusable because of a software update. I could not change the battery, so I decided to change my phone. Bought a 6a, and now google pushes a software update for the same battery issue with the 4a. So now the 6a is also unusable. Which means 2 phones in 6 months.

Papilionoidea • 6mo ago

Weird. My 6 still works perfectly

eehoe • 6mo ago

Bought an 8 pro at launch, wifi and bt died 1.5 years into ownership.

Im eyeing the p10pxl as I've had the pixel 2xl,6pro,7pro,8pro.

If the 10proxl craps out just as fast, this would be my last pixel

Sensitive-Match5215 • 6mo ago

Same problem here. I m done with pixel. Thinking of going back to one plus

eehoe • 6mo ago

I've eyed the op as well. All the brands have essentially caught up to the photo/video quality of pixels. The s25 ultra is pretty much there, but I can't stand the face smoothening affect it applies.

Ive read the op13 photo quality is just as good at times, but not yet on video and/or low light performance.

Skip to main contentCreate[deleted] • 6mo ago pixel 9 pro fold or the new 10 pro fold when its released

Asleep_Mongoose1158 • 6mo ago

Not the As, as it seems the battery problem comes to all of them eventually. I loved my 6a until then though.

UsedKaleidoscope194 • 6mo ago

I've had a pixel 3a and I'm about to send the pixel 6a for the battery replacement. Both with dangerously overheating batteries. I hear the pixel 9 also has this issue. Sad to say- I won't buy Google phones anymore. If Google won't fix a problem with its phones that they've been aware of for many years- they don't get my business anymore. Sorry, not sorry.

bites_stringcheese • 6mo ago

Pixel Fold

I have a bit of a different question. I have the OG Fold which I adore but it's really showing its age in a lot of ways. I am really disappointed that the 10 Pro Fold is still using subpar cameras. Resell value vs price I paid new is also tough

T-Mobile is offering $1100 toward a Samsung Fold 7, and the hardware looks incredible. I love having a folding phone otherwise and I like how this will be substantially smaller than the 10 Pro Fold. Should I do it, or potentially just go back to slab Pixel? I much prefer the Pixel UX but it seems like Samsungs UI has some nice multitasking features to make up for it.

Rubik_31415926535 • 6mo ago

Currently on a Pixel 7 and looking to upgrade. The Pixel 9a is at €444 and the Pixel 9 is at €499 at the moment, where I live. Mainly three scenarios:

1. Buy the P9 at €499, seems like great value-for-money
2. Wait a little for the P9a to drop more (back-to-school-promo?) and buy that one
3. Wait till the P10 is released (at €899) and keep an eye on promos for P10, P9 and P9a

Any advice?

New_Guidance_7957 • 6mo ago

Skip to main content

Create

better trade in deals if they happen.

Additionally, I got another question about the pixel watch 3 and 4. I'm thinking about getting a pixel watch 3 45mm due to the size, but I'm also thinking about her pixel watch 4 due to the different charging stand I heard.

Any ideas on what to wait for? I have a small part time job and such.

ThePizzaDeliveryM3n • 6mo ago

My 7 battery has also gotten worse. I'll upgrade in November.

elgrandorado • 6mo ago

I've got a Pixel 9 Pro. I use Google apps natively and have used Android for a long time. I usually try to multitask work items and have work apps linked to my personal phone. I don't game at all (on my phone that is) and also run google sheets consistently alongside google calendar and others. Should I consider buying a 9 Pro Fold or a 10 Pro Fold? I love the utility of foldables and sometimes feel cramped when trying to read long paragraphs or large swaths of text.

geefmejegeld • 6mo ago

Using 8P now for almost year and a half now. Thinking of maybe upgrading to 10P or XL when it comes out. Battery of my phone took a hit and it's draining pretty quickly compared to the beginning.

I'm also using a Pixel Watch 1 since the beginning and also thinking to upgrade to perhaps the 4th iteration of the watch.

ejbSF • 6mo ago

Okay then. I've got the 6A with the bad battery. I hadn't intended on replacing it for another year or two, but now I'm wondering if I should. My dream phone would be the 9 pro, but it's out of my price range. The 8 pro is on sale right now, a pretty good deal. But is the eight worth it? Should I hold out for the nine pro? Throw my hands up in the air and just get the battery replaced in the 6A? Any thoughts are very welcome.

topsy_turvyian • 6mo ago

I'm in the same boat!

8pro has a good deal but not sure if it's worth the upgrade

Ok_Cry7572 • 6mo ago

Skip to main contentCreate

much difference between 8/9 and probably 10

Swimgood_ • 6mo ago

My 6 pro is dying, literally flickering green screen that isn't going away, could be any day now.

Should I get a 9 or try and hold out for a 10? I've done no research on the 10 yet but it sounds like no real upgrades.

sami_126 • 6mo ago

Same for me! Writing this on lowest possible brightness otherwise it's green. Let me know what you decide pls!

Swimgood_ • 6mo ago

Lowering brightness does nothing for me unfortunately.

My plan originally was to wait for the 10 and tough it out, but the flickering is getting worse and I doubt it will last until the 10 release, and my sanity might not either.

Real_Stranger_7957 • 6mo ago

Why should I wait for a pixel 10 pro? I'm currently using an LG G8.

Goodlucksil • 6mo ago

Pixel 7 or 7a?

Ok_Cry7572 • 6mo ago

Get the 8 or 9A as the other said. 7/7a battery now won't be that good

Goodlucksil • 6mo ago

I don't have enough budget for the 8a

Tamed • 6mo ago

Neither. I'm trying to get out of my 7. The battery sucks, and has always sucked since it was new. It was so bad that there was a battery issues thread on here for years over it.

Skip to main content

Create

New_Guidance_7957 • 6mo ago

Have a 7 and I can confirm the battery just keeps sinking down so fast for no reason even when I need the brighter brightness for the day time.

Tamed • 6mo ago

A lot of it is the modem. If I put my phone in Airplane Mode, the battery lasts a ton longer. It's a common complaint with the 7.

PusheenHater • 6mo ago

Only in terms of camera, how much better is Pixel 9/10 compared to Pixel 7?

Tamed • 6mo ago

Macro lens makes a huge difference for close up shots. Regular camera is same-ish. Selfie camera is same-ish.

ToSeeAgainAgainAgain • 6mo ago

P8P

My day one P8Pro shows no signs of slowing down at all, I'll ride it til the 11Pro comes out, or maybe get a discounted 10Pro by then if the 11th gen doesn't bring anything big with it

[deleted] • 6mo ago

My mother (based in Italy) has a 6a with 390 charging cycles. I contacted Google support and they told me the battery focused update will come after 400 charging cycles. But, as weird as it could sound, coupon/voucher will be given only after the 600th cycle. (That's what they wrote in the mail).

So, what would you suggest? Risking it till 600 (which will take a lot of time) or just giving it up and going for another smartphone? Amazon trade in prices it 60€, while Google 90.

radgatt • 6mo ago

Pixel 10 Pro XL

I guess the mods haven't gotten around to making the post sticky at the top of the subreddit.

aev21121 • 6mo ago

Skip to main content

Create

...pro goes on sale when the new one comes out.

randvell • 6mo ago

I have 7 pro and am pretty happy with it. Thinking about an upgrade. However Pixel is not officially selling in my country and with the import taxes it would cost a fortune (it's already too expensive). So I'm planning to buy it during my trip to Japan in December. It's been more than 3 months since release and I will already know if it's a good model or not really. If it would have serious problems, I would skip to the next generation.

ToSeeAgainAgainAgain • 6mo ago

P8P

That's a good plan. Maybe you can get the 10% tax of your purchase back by showing your passport and flight back home

randvell • 6mo ago

I hope so. Trade-in is also available in Japan, but it's too risky for me if they decline it for some reason. And I'm not sure about trade value, if it's not more, than 150$, it's not worth it and it's better just to keep the phone.

wxsherri • 6mo ago

I have a Sony Xperia 5 iii. I love it. I would not be changing phones except I cracked the screen to hell and Sony doesn't do US phones (I'm on AT&T and I don't want to switch to T-Mobile and have an international version).

Thought about the pixel 7 pro as it resembles the Xperia 5 iii but refurbished means scratches in my experience and I'd like a "new" phone. I'm not impressed with the pixel 10 pro (iphone look is not appealing) so I'm considering waiting to see if the 11 is actually different next year. Pixel 8 pro could be my temporary but it's far from a compact.

brainspl0ad • 6mo ago

I just got the Pixel 9 early July (previously owned the 7 before that) and was looking to trade for the OG Pixel fold. Has anyone made that move? Or has anyone had experience with both that could steer me in one direction vs the other? TIA

Create

