

Skip to main content r/GooglePixel Search in r/GooglePixel

Create

r/GooglePixel • 1y ago A7beeny

why Google is stubborn?

few things that I hate while using the Pixel (I don't use it anymore) and makes my experience 🤢 🤢, first the search bar! why it's fixed? the updates, why it's updating while it's on? it's absolutely stupid! I turned on the phone couple weeks ago to update to Android 15 and that's it, turned it back off!. taking a screenshot by tapping the back is absolutely ridiculous! I thought Android is all about options but the Pixel is definitely not user friendly. too boring and restricted. it's like using iOs again!

Archived post. New comments cannot be posted and votes cannot be cast.

0

13

Share

Sort by: Best ▾

Search Comments

Error404_1589 • 1y ago

Confusing post I must say. Yes the fact that the search bar is fixed does not seem like android. But I would not have it any other way but that is just preference. You can just tell the phone to update in the night if you would prefer that. The screenshot is as customizable as you want. You can just use the power en volume down button to take the screenshot just like any other phone I can think off. If I tap the back twice it turns on the flashlight, or you could set it to something else but if were are honest. The backtap feature is not very reliable.

Only valid point here is the search bar and you could install another launcher if that is your only issue.

2

ImagineNiceCakes • 1y ago

Yeap, the search bar is really stupid. And, imo, a third party launcher isn't really a good fix. Totally replaces pixel ui and unnecessarily bloats the phone.

Very minor problem with what's otherwise a nice phone and software experience tho.

0

Error404_1589 • 1y agoA7beeny OP • 1y ago

other smartphones have easier ways to take screenshots (3 fingers swipe or edge of palm swipe) and for the update, I don't wanna wait for it, I can easily update all my Galaxy phones within less than 10 minutes, why I don't have the option to update quick rather than background slow update 🤢

jabbers724 • 1y ago • Edited 1y ago

Skip to main content

Create

these options work for you.

Seamless updates are more reliable and have less chance of borking your phone. Even Samsung is rumored to be transitioning to seamless updates in the future. You have the option to side load if you want it quicker.

wxyzed • 1y ago

Did you know you can swipe up from the bottom of the screen? Swipe up from the bottom about an inch and hold. It will give you the option to take a screenshot.

A7beeny OP • 1y ago

thanx, that's very helpful

JimDantin3 • 1y ago

Amazing what happens when you make an effort to LEARN instead of WHINE!

A7beeny OP • 1y ago

actually I've seen that but forgot about it cause it's a 2 step process instead of one swipe

Error404_1589 • 1y ago

Fair point about the screenshots but the buttons work great but the swiping thing as far as I am aware isn't that common but don't quote me on that.

Update wise, I don't get it. you download and install the update in the background and just use your phone as normal and when it's all done you just restart the phone and tada, 2 minutes later your phone is updated.

A7beeny OP • 1y ago

it doesn't make sense to wait hours for an update, when it can be done within 5-10 minutes

Error404_1589 • 1y ago

What? Hours? Something is definitely going wrong then. And even if it takes hours, I could not conceive of any reason why the time it takes matters.

Create

